

COUNCIL SETS SEPTEMBER 18 FOR $1,775,000 BOND ISSUE TO SECURE $9,600,000 WORK PROGRAM FOR ATLANTA

DEEN PLEA TO END CONGRESS SESSION CHEERED IN HOUSE

Ringier Applause Greets Democrat's Suggestion That Tax Measure Be Taken Up in Fall or Postponed To Winter.

DRAFTING OF BILL IS BEGUN BY GROUP

House Committee Names Lovell Parker and Middleton Beaman To Shape Tentative Proposal.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, July 15.—Representative Braxton Bragg, today threw the house into an uproar of applause when he called upon Speaker Byrnes and his colleagues to bring about an immediate adjournment of congress so that ailing members could retrieve their health, which, he said, had been shattered by weary months of official travail.

Deen's appeal was made at the house but its own "brain trust" at work drafting the President's tax bill.

The ways and means committee asked Lovell H. Parker, chief of staff of the joint congressional committee on internal revenue, and Middleton Beaman, house legislative counsel, to try to shape up a tentative bill for the committee's consideration.

That the job was a big one was indicated by Chairman Doughton's, democrat, North Carolina, estimate that it would be next week before the committee could go to work on the bill. He guessed that it would take the committee "about a week" to finish the job.

Obtaining unanimous consent to address the lower chamber for two minutes, Mr. Deen faced Speaker Byrnes and demanded that the leadership of the body take cognizance of the fact that more than 20 members were now in hospitals or at their homes recuperating from the strain of their congressional duties.

"Mr. Speaker," he declared, "there are many reasons why the house should quickly adjourn this session of the seventy-fourth congress."

Such a round of applause greeted the Georgian that the speaker's gav-

Maj. Gen. Leach Lost After Parachute Jump

RIVERSIDE, Cal., July 15.—(AP) Major General George E. Leach, of Washington, head of the national guard, made a parachute jump from an army plane somewhere near Holbrook, Ariz., late today and has not been heard from since. March field army flying base here was informed tonight.

The report came from Captain Charles M. Cummings, also of Washington, who said their plane caught fire and they both "bailed out." Cummings said he walked 18 miles for aid.

General Leach was on route to California to inspect the national guard encampment and maneuvers at Santa Maria.

Two planes from March field were dispatched tonight to the army landing station at Flagstaff to aid in the search. They were piloted by Lieutenants Leslie Raybold and Hunter Harris.

MUSSOLINI CALLS 2 NEW DIVISIONS FOR AFRICAN DUTY

35,000 Black Shirts and Regulars Summoned to Swell Total Designated for Ethiopia to 250,000.

ROME, July 15.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini gave the world new testimony tonight of his determination to make the Italian army in east Africa a powerful one as orders went forth for the mobilization of two new military divisions.

One is to be composed of regular army men and the other of black-shirts. Approximately 35,000 men are involved in the new mobilization. It was announced in an official communique, bringing the total of troops already in east Africa or designated for service there to 250,000.

Of those called up to date, 20,000 are regulars and from 12,000 to 15,000 are fascist militiamen.

It came at the same time indicated he was not permitting the Italian-Ethiopian dispute to divert his attention entirely from Italy's European defenses by ordering the construction of 10 new submarines.

Walmsley May Head New Political Party

NEW ORLEANS, July 15.—(AP)—Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley tonight loomed as the leader of a new party built up on the feeling caused by the dissolution of his old regular political organization ward leaders.

The old regular political leaders earlier in the day, although reaffirming their alliance with the forces of Senator Huey P. Long, voted down Long's demand that petitions be circulated for Walmsley's removal by the legislature.

The leaders of the mayor's party last week went to Long's skyscraper hotel suite, surrendered to the state dictator and heard him say he would help the city back to financial stability if Walmsley was put out.

Walmsley, in an address last night, accused the ward leaders of repudiating a pledge never to deal with Long.

RIVALRY APPARENT BETWEEN GROUPS IN LOBBYING PROBE

Questionnaires To Holding Companies Asks How Much Money Was Spent on Utility Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—A growing rivalry between the senate and house and house committees investigating the capital's lobbyists.

Coincidentally with a senate disclosure of a probe into whether the fight against the utilities bill was financed through higher rates to power consumers, Chairman O'Connor, of the house investigating committee, announced his group would shortly equip itself with counsel and special investigators. Emphatically he denied all reports that the house and senate inquiries may be linked in a joint investigation.

Beyond that, he referred to the sudden beginning of the senate investigation as hasty and precipitate. With emphasis he added that his own was a "very deliberate committee."

O'Connor's statements were evoked by questions whether the house group would avoid duplicating the work of the senate committee, which had already heard Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, and had seized the records of the organization.

Rebuttal Hearing Today.

At the same time he announced his committee would hear rebuttal testimony tomorrow from Representative Brewster, republican, Maine, whose charge that the administration sought to intimidate him into voting for the compulsory dissolution of public utility holding companies has been surrounded by a mass of conflicting testimony.

Meanwhile, Chairman Black, democrat, Alabama, of the senate committee, dispatched lengthy questionnaires to all power holding companies.

UNIVERSITY BOARD SEEKS U. S. GRANT

Governor on Committee To Ask $900,000; Hosch Will Head Law School.

The board of regents of the University System yesterday voted to ask the federal government for a grant of $900,000 to match its $1,000,000 building fund voted by the legislature earlier this year.

At the same session yesterday the regents voted unanimously to elect J. Alton Hosch, 30-year-old Gainesville attorney, to head the Lumpkin School of Law at the University of Georgia. He succeeds Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, who has been elevated to the presidency of the university.

Governor Talmadge, at whose insistence a previous loan and grant of law at the University of Georgia was withdrawn from the PWA was named by Chairman Marion Smith on a special committee of the regents to take up the grant proposal with either the Public Works Administration or the Works Progress Administration.

"If we get this it will be entirely a grant and there will be no loan with interest to repay," the Governor said in discussing the proposal. "It will swell our building fund to $1,900,000."

Opposed Loan.

The $1,000,000 fund was voted by the legislature at the Governor's request when he prevailed on the regents to withdraw their previous application from the PWA, an application

U. S. Moves To Halt Sale of Lottery Tickets

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(UP)—The postoffice department today opened a huge drive against the foreign lottery racket by issuing fraud orders against approximately 450 residents of Canada, Cuba, Bermuda, Mexico, France and Luxembourg.

The new fraud order list comprised 100 closely typed pages of names and addresses. It was the longest ever issued by the department in its efforts to end the sale of lottery tickets, said to take untold millions of dollars from the country annually.

296 firms and individuals in Canada. About 40 named residents of Havana. The rest of the names were scattered in other countries.

Harvey, Smith To Serve U.S. Terms In Escape-Proof Alcatraz Prison

If Appellate Court Upholds Federal Convictions of Notorious Georgia Prison Breakers, They Will Go to American "Devil's Island."

Confident that their convictions will be upheld by the circuit court of appeals federal government authorities have made arrangements for Leland Harvey and Aubrey Smith, Georgia's noted escape artists, to serve their seven-year terms for bank robbery at Alcatraz, the escape-proof prison in San Francisco bay.

It was learned authoritatively yesterday that Sanford Bates, superintendent of federal prisons, has issued orders that when and if the Harvey and Smith sentences are upheld the men be received at the federal prison here and immediately transferred to Alcatraz.

The island prison, known as the American "Devil's Island," already holds some of the nation's most notorious federal prisoners, including Al Capone, who served part of his 10-year sentence for violation of the income tax laws here.

The Harvey and Smith cases are now before the circuit court of appeals at New Orleans and a decision is expected on them shortly. Their attorneys have appealed the convictions on the ground that Judge E. Marvin Underwood, who presided over the trials at Rome, erred in his instructions to the jury.

Federal officials would make no statements for publication regarding their planned disposals of Harvey and Smith but it is known that Superintendent Bates has studied their records, covering scores of escapes in Georgia and elsewhere and decided Alcatraz is the safest spot the government has for the two men.

Harvey and Smith are being held in Fulton tower here pending the circuit court decision.

VARIATIONS SHOWN IN ELECTRIC RATES

Federal Survey Reveals Great Difference in Cost For Many Georgia Cities

Analysis of rates charged in Georgia for domestic and commercial electricity, made by the Federal Power Commission, shows variations ranging in some instances more than 100 per cent between the lowest rate towns and the highest in the same population group.

The widest variation is between two towns, both of which operate their own, municipally owned, plants. At Savannah the billing for 25 kilowatt hours is 152 per cent higher than at Calhoun, the other town.

Five cities with populations exceeding 25,000, Atlanta, Savannah, Augusta, Columbus and Macon, are grouped together. Of these five, four are served by the Georgia Power Company, the fifth being Savannah. The survey shows that for 25 kilowatt hours Savannah consumers pay 12.4 per cent more than those in the other four towns. For 100 and 250 kilowatt hours the rate in Savannah is the same as the standard rate in the other four cities.

Two Sets of Rates.

Cities served by the Georgia Power Company have two sets of rates; one being known as the "inducement" rate, the other as the "inducement" rate. The lower, or "inducement" rate is granted those customers whose electricity consumption shows an increase for the corresponding month in 1933 and officials of the company stated yesterday that 61 per cent of their residential consumers are now on the lower rate.

In Atlanta, Augusta, Columbus and Macon, the standard rate for 100 kilowatt hours consumption is 15.7 per cent higher than the inducement rate, while for 250 kilowatt hours it is 26.6 per cent higher.

The report shows there are 11 privately owned utility companies and the other as the "inducement" rate. The lower, or "inducement" rate is granted those customers whose electricity consumption shows an increase for the corresponding month in 1933 and officials of the company stated yesterday that 61 per cent of their residential consumers are now on the lower rate.

Atlanta Watches Eclipse of Moon In Clear Sky for More Than Hour

Thousands of Atlantans last night witnessed one of those heavenly spectacles which gave "Sir Boss" all his power and glory in the court of King Arthur when the Connecticut Yankee stared off disaster for himself by recalling that the moon was due to hide its light.

The total eclipse last night was the longest duration that has been witnessed in Atlanta in the last 50 years and it was the first total eclipse visible here in slightly less than seven years, according to Judge John D. Humphries, noted Atlanta astronomer.

"The eclipse was one of the most interesting I have ever seen," the judge said.

The reason for the duration of the eclipse was explained by the judge as being due to the fact that at the present time the moon is approximately as close to the earth as it ever comes in its orbit. The earth casts a cone shaped shadow into space with the shadow of the earth. At 49 minutes after midnight the glow became stronger on the left side and the edge of the moon appeared. The eclipse lasted for an hour and 40 minutes.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Borg, at 120 Peachtree Dunwoody road the eclipse nearly disrupted a birthday party that was in progress for Mrs. Borg and Miss Mary Heindl, of the Biltmore hotel.

HOUSING PROGRAM OF GOVERNMENT IS RULED ILLEGAL

Circuit Appeals Court Declares U. S. Has No Power To Condemn Land for Such Building Purposes.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 15.—(AP) The administration's low-cost housing plans hit a stumbling block today when the sixth district United States circuit court of appeals here ruled the government has no power to condemn land for such purposes.

Secretary Ickes, in Washington, promptly announced, however, the plans for the program for which $240,000,000 in work relief funds has been earmarked, would proceed on another tack.

"The taking of one citizen's property for the purpose of improving it and selling it or leasing it to another, or for the purpose of reducing unemployment," the appeals court here said, "is not, in our opinion, within the scope of the powers delegated to the government."

"We are not going to stop this work merely because of restrictions of condemnation power," Secretary Ickes countered. "We will have to modify the form somewhat, but we shall proceed."

The secretary declared the work would proceed "within the limits set by the decision." He declined to say whether the government would appeal, pending study of the circuit court's opinion.

Other Methods.

Officials indicated at least three other methods of procedure remain available for the housing program: Outright purchase of land by the government with a subsequent exchange of new for old by erecting new buildings while the affected cities demolish an equal number of slum dwellings; procedure where 100 per cent options can be obtained, or where municipal au-

AIRPORT PROJECT GIVEN FINAL O. K.

President Releases $3,747,389 To Start WPA Work on 529 State Jobs.

Release of $3,747,389 for 529 non-federal projects in Georgia was given final approval yesterday by President Roosevelt and actual work will start as soon as Works Progress Administration officials here receive formal notification from Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator in Washington.

The latest approved list, which is the major portion of the $10,239,000 program approved by the President ten days ago, includes for Atlanta funds for airport construction, hospital repairs and improvements, additions and repairs to school buildings, completion of an addition to the Carnegie library and repairs to buildings at Georgia Tech.

Work, however, will be started only on the airport project, which will cost $328,500. The Carnegie addition, which is nearing completion, will cost $19,068. The city of Atlanta must contribute funds to purchase materials and has agreed to do so only on the two projects mentioned. The city will put up $17,000 for the airport and $300 for the library addition.

To Shift Jobs.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia WPA administrator, expected to start shifting the state's 71,000 jobless breadwinners from work-relief to the new WPA projects yesterday, but failure of the President to give his final

Grand Jury To Start County Affairs Probe

Charges of waste and extravagance in the operation of the county government by the majority faction of the Board of Commissioners will be heard this morning by the Fulton County Grand Jury as it begins an exhaustive investigation of county affairs.

The hearing will begin at 10 o'clock, with most of the routine business of the commission has put many new employees on the pay roll for year who have no work to do. He terms these employees "parasites."

Longino said yesterday that figures given to the grand jury showing 40 employees added to the pay roll this year and 69 in 1934 were erroneous.

Dr. Charles R. Adams, chairman of the commission, said the figures were compiled by Frank R. Flinn, clerk of the board, and were from the official records.

TRADE PACTS BAN IS TACKLED ON AAA IN WARM SESSION

Bill Making Only Little Progress, Rider Threatens Long-Drawn Fight on Adjustment Program

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Administration plans for swift enactment of legislation to patch up and extend its farm adjustment program tonight were threatened by a hot reciprocal tariff controversy.

Senator McCarran, democrat, Nevada, introduced an amendment seeking repeal of the reciprocal tariff law in a rider to the AAA bill. This notice came as the fourth day of debate on the farm amendments found most of the controversial issues unsettled. These included crop price fixing, ratification of present processing tax rates, the outlawing of tax recovery suits and the plan for using customs receipts to finance exports of surplus.

The Nevada purpose was to seek attachment of his bill to withdraw the authority granted President Roosevelt to negotiate trade agreements. It promised to win support from republicans, particularly Senator Vandenberg, republican, Michigan, who repeatedly has assailed the administration's tariff policies.

Even before this new delay threatened, only trivial progress was made

Gangsters' Nemesis Will Turn Author

CHICAGO, July 15.—(AP)—Melvin H. Purvis, former chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation here, disclosed today he planned to turn magazine writer temporarily, at least.

Ending speculation as to his future activities, the recent "ace of the G-men" who led the mop-up of the Dillinger gang and other notorious criminals, said he had signed a contract with a nationally circulated magazine for a series of articles recounting his experiences as a crime fighter for the past eight years.

"I have many other things in mind, of course," Purvis said, "but this is one job I want to finish first."

Daniel M. Ladd has been appointed chief of the Chicago office of the United States Bureau of Investigation, succeeding Purvis.

Ladd once served as an agent in New Orleans.

UNANIMOUS VOTE IS GIVEN PROPOSAL BY CITY FATHERS

Both Council and Aldermanic Board Act Without Dissent on Plan To Secure Vital Civic Improvements for Atlanta.

$3,000 IS PROVIDED TO HOLD ELECTION

Sewers, Schools Chief Beneficiaries of WPA Funds That Lift Total To Nearly 10 Million.

A $9,600,000 work program including modernization of sanitary and storm water sewers and improvements for a score of Atlanta schools yesterday was passed by city council directly to the voters of Atlanta in a $1,755,000 bond issue on which the electorate will be asked to ballot September 18.

Not a dissenting vote was cast either in council or the aldermanic board on the bond issue proposal and a fund of $3,000 was provided for holding the election.

Items Are Listed.

The bond ballot will carry the following items:

1. $1,000,000 for sanitary sewers for which WPA already has allocated $4,500,000.

2. $500,000 for storm water sewers with which William A. Hansell, assistant chief of construction in charge of sewers, asserted he hoped to get another $2,000,000 from WPA.

3. $275,000 for school bonds on which the school board has agreed to provide interest and sinking funds to retire and to which it is expected WPA will add another $805,000.

Battle Hill Fund.

In addition, council provided $3,650 for construction of a white ward at Battle Hill sanitarium at a cost of $96,510.16, to be undertaken by WPA.

Alderman Robert Carpenter, chairman of the library committee, announced that the $300 needed to complete the Carnegie library annex will be provided from library funds, thus insuring completion of that project.

Previously it was announced that WPA is satisfied to allow the city to furnish materials and equipment to the amount of $17,964, the sum WPA

Garrido Supporters Slay Three Students

MEXICO CITY, July 15.—(AP)—Three members of a delegation of students which went to Villa Hermosa to campaign against Thomas Garrido, radical ruler of the state of Tabasco and former cabinet member, were shot to death on the street there today by machine gun fire.

Six other students were wounded, one probably fatally.

Telegrams from Rodolfo Brito Foucher, Mexico City attorney, and leader of a group of 20 students which flew to Villa Hermosa yesterday to open a campaign to overthrow Garrido, said supporters of the latter opened fire from an automobile as the students walked through the street.

Garrido resigned last month as secretary of agriculture when President Lazaro Cardenas revamped his cabinet. He was leader of the radical young "red shirt" organization, accused of instilling anti-Catholic disorders.

SEPTEMBER 18 NAMED BOND ELECTION DATE

asked of the municipality for construction of asphalt runways and completion of grading activities at Candler field at a cost of $228,500 to WPA.

Key's Approval Sure.

Mayor Key's approval to the WPA measures is assured, as he has been one of the leaders in the drive to secure federal funds for much-needed improvements the city could not provide.

The city will put up a total of $5,850 for the Battle Hill improvement, but a trust fund and other available funds provide $5,000 of the required sum.

The aldermanic board for a time jeopardized the $3,650 for Battle Hill because the sum was taken from interest on loan accounts of the municipality from which a large majority of city council several weeks ago attempted to obtain the major portion of $27,500 to reimburse five per cent of the cuts imposed on municipal employees for the first two months of this year.

Aldermen Irked.

Key vetoed the appropriation and city council sustained the veto by a small margin. Thus irked, the aldermanic board yesterday non-concurred in four appropriations from the same fund amounting to $1,749.66 and passed a resolution instructing Mayor Pro Tem Ed A. Gilliam to notify Councilman Aubrey Milam, chairman of the finance committee, it would approve no further council measures taking money from that account until the salaries of the employees has been approved.

The action was regarded as a deft to Mayor Key and an ultimatum to the finance committee, as well as a slap at the city council itself. It was predicted that Key will resist the action and that he will refuse to allow reinstatement of the salary cuts if he can avoid it.

Included in the list of bills was an appropriation of $1,000 to purchase medical supplies at the contagious disease hospital. No roll call votes were demanded or held on any of the measures with which the aldermanic board failed to concur.

The other measures which the aldermen failed to approve were $250 to FERA for completion of the Bell Hill underground; $90.60 for materials furnished by the Pine Mountain Granite Company to lay curbing on streets around property owned by the city and $400 to the Meador Construction Company for paving streets in front of city-owned properties.

For the past several weeks resentment has been brewing in the aldermanic board but it flared into the open yesterday when several members, led by James E. Bowden, of the fifth ward, and others, leveled their fire at the mayor.

Bowden at first fought transfer of any funds from the interest account, assigning as his reason that when the salary reinstatement was up for consideration it was claimed by administration leaders the funds were not there. Finally he was prevailed upon to withdraw his objection to the Battle Hill item but was adamant regarding any of the others, even the $1,000 for buying medicines for the contagious disease clinic.

Among other major actions of council were:

Voted to reduce the city license for sales of beer where it is consumed on the premises from $100 to $80 a year; where it is not drunk on the premises from $50 to $40; wine sales from $50 to $30, and made a combined rate of $120 a year for sale of both wine and beer to be drunk on the premises. The new rates are effective October 1.

Street Name Changed.

Changed the name of Nineteenth street, running eastward from Montgomery Ferry drive to near Avery drive to Beverly road.

Allowed John K. Otley to purchase the old police lockup box at Edgewood avenue and Delta place for the sum of $1.

Authorized George I. Simons, general manager of parks, to trade or sell surplus animals at city zoo.

Filed a veto by the mayor to a proposal to allow unlimited parking on West Peachtree street from Baker to North avenue. At the present time it is restricted to one-hour parking.

Received bids for repainting approaches to the Whitehall street viaduct.

Referred to the police committee a complaint from citizens of the Peters Park section that the area is improperly patrolled and also a proposal to establish a quiet zone near Atlanta hospitals. Petitioners in the Peters Park section recited the fact that Victor Barron, newspaperman, has found dead there recently and that a woman had been beaten and robbed in that vicinity.

Passed a resolution offered by Councilman John A. White requesting the school department to make all future improvements for high schools with a view of converting them into co-educational institutions.

Sent to Committee.

Sent to the water committee a lengthy communication by Judge Ernest C. Kotts, former member of council, asking that $300,000 be included in the bond issue to provide materials for modernizing and enlarging the filter system at the Atlanta waterworks. Kotts recited that the move is necessary as health insurance and that the federal government would supplement the fund by about $350,000, the estimated cost of labor for the undertaking.

Edgar A. Neely, president of the Atlanta Taxpayers' League, yesterday advocated sewer bond improvements in a communication to the public, but said the league would oppose any other bonds because of the necessity of providing funds for amortization, which would necessitate an increase in tax burdens.

The Atlanta board of education yesterday agreed to assume the fiscal responsibility attending the issuance of the $275,000 worth of school bonds and in a resolution filed in council by Gilliam, chairman of the schools committee and as such a member of the Board of Education, agreed the city would not be asked to put up any money for interest or sinking funds.

School Improvements.

George S. Lowman, sixth ward school commissioner and chairman of the federal aid committee of the board, explained to council that the school bonds would be utilized to provide the following improvements for the following institutions:

Davis street, auditorium, $27,000;

Key, auditorium, $50,000; Girls' High, gymnasium extension and other improvements, $35,000; Howard (negro), added classrooms, $55,000; Haywood, classrooms, $37,000; Conally, new classrooms, $35,000; Washington (negro), new classrooms, $65,000; Henry Grady High, gymnasium and auditorium, $135,000; Home Park, new rooms, $35,000; Highland Avenue, new rooms, $30,000; Adair, new rooms, $30,000; Sylvan Hills, new rooms, $27,000; Keith, auditorium, $30,000; East Lake, auditorium and new rooms, $35,000; Inman, replace portables through construction of additional classrooms, $40,000; for city at large and not yet allocated, $75,000.

Woman Jurist Dissents.

Judges Charles H. Moorman and Xenophon Hicks wrote the majority ruling opinion. Judge Florence Allen, highest woman jurist in the United States, dissented firmly.

"The power of eminent domain," she wrote, "may be exercised wherever necessary and proper for carrying into execution the power of taxation and appropriation for the general welfare. . . . In the exercise of this specific power the national government may undertake those projects which benefit the health, the moral, and the general welfare of the people. One such project is the elimination of a comprehensive scale of the slum."

Judges Moorman and Hicks asserted, however, "the contention of the government is that the property here sought to be condemned is to be devoted to a public use because, first, the construction of the project will relieve unemployment during the period of construction and, secondly, the leasing or selling of the new building at a reasonable price will give to persons of low income an opportunity to improve their living conditions."

But they ruled out unemployment relief as an argument because they doubted it "can be said to constitute the use to which the property is to be put," and they denied that central government can take from one to benefit another."

ICKES, ADVISERS CONFER ON HOW TO SAVE FUNDS.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(P)—Secretary Ickes summoned his legal advisers tonight for a determined effort to save the $249,000,000 low-cost housing program of the Public Works Administration from the latest legal jolt to the New Deal.

COURT RULING BLOCKS U. S. HOUSING PROGRAM

authorities themselves acquire the needed land. Today's decision came as the circuit court, dividing two to one, upheld Judge Charles I. Dawson, of Louisville, now retired, in his contention that low-cost housing or slum elimination is not "public use" under the government's power of eminent domain. His ruling January 4 blocked a $1,618,000 housing project in Louisville, Ky.

Judges Charles H. Moorman and Xenophon Hicks wrote the majority ruling opinion. Judge Florence Allen, highest woman jurist in the United States, dissented firmly.

"The power of eminent domain," she wrote, "may be exercised wherever necessary and proper for carrying into execution the power of taxation and appropriation for the general welfare. . . . ICKES, ADVISERS CONFER ON HOW TO SAVE FUNDS.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(P)—Secretary Ickes summoned his legal advisers tonight for a determined effort to save the $249,000,000 low-cost housing program of the Public Works Administration from the latest legal jolt to the New Deal.

Although aids insisted the decision of the circuit court of appeals at Cincinnati applied only to that circuit, privately they acknowledged that denial of power to condemn sites would hinder greatly the already slow process of acquiring land.

The PWA administrator—who has just received his housing program from Harry E. Hopkins' wordy rules barring projects involving such a heavy outlay for materials—declined to say whether he would carry an appeal to the supreme court. This question also was under study at the Justice Department.

Undecided by Ickes too—although he insisted that 85 per cent of the sites had been optional and 95 per cent would be sold voluntarily—was whether the $1,600,000 assigned to the Louisville, Ky., project would be cancelled.

To Continue Work.

Reminding that the Louisville decision upheld by the circuit court did not affect the government's right to carry out housing projects Ickes emphasized that "while lack of authority to institute condemnation proceedings will restrict the slum clearance and low rent housing program somewhat, it will not shut it off."

"We have laid the groundwork for 'proceeding without condemnation,'" Ickes said. "And in a good many cities, we have already selected alternate adjacent land sites where ownership is held by one or two persons."

Funds for 80 housing projects are included in the $249,000,000 the President set aside for the new works appropriation. Only $109,000,000, however, has been allocated for specific projects and these will be cancelled where acquisition of land is blocked.

A mysterious feature of the case went unexplained—the first decision to appear in the circuit court of appeals directly to the supreme court, and the later reversal which routed the appeal through the circuit court.

Ickes announced in January that he would speed the Attorney-General Cummings would ask the supreme court to take up the case immediately.

Later, however, Cummings withdrew the request and it was scheduled today on the possibility he had believed the circuit court would be favorable to the government.

But the PWA administrator and should win in the supreme court, condemnation suits will be of no help in the present work program. A decision by the circuit court, however, in December, making it impossible to complete projects involving condemnation by summer as ordered by the President.

DECISION NOT TO AFFECT ATLANTA HOUSING PROGRAM.

The circuit court decision, holding that the federal government had no authority to condemn land for its low-cost housing project, will in no way affect the situation governing the Techwood housing program, F. Palmer said yesterday. It also was said yesterday that the University project would not be affected.

Mr. Palmer pointed out that similar proceedings were launched here more than a year ago, but that Judge E. Marvin Underwood held the government required the required authority and there was no appeal taken from his decision. Mr. Palmer said he did not know what would happen if the United States supreme court upheld the Cincinnati decision.

The Techwood housing project here is rapidly nearing completion. Mr. Palmer also cited the fact that the state supreme court of New York had refused to enjoin the government from condemning land needed for a housing project. In its decision ending litigation the New York court held that the project was being launched to improve the health conditions of the state and that the federal government had authority to travel with improved health as the final objective.

RIVALRY SEEN IN PROBE OF UTILITY LOBBYISTS

While the answers may be a week to a month in trickling in, the committee expects to proceed soon with the hearing on witnesses, probably those associated with Gadden, who had said his organization spent more than $300,000 in opposing the "death sentence."

O'Connor's statement, given to reporters at a press conference, clearly smelt, brought at least partially into the open a question that has been the subject of much covert discussion about the capital in the last week, especially since the senate group swung into action.

Black Heads Body.

The rules committee, of which he is chairman, was directed by the house to investigate all efforts to swing votes for or against the compulsory dissolution feature of the utilities bill. Black was made chairman of a special committee to investigate lobbying on any subject.

"Of course we had intended to start off with Gadden," O'Connor said. "He was the natural selection, being the head of the utilities committee, but we wanted to clean up the Brewster matter first."

He declined smilingly to answer any questions about the senate committee's having seized the committee's records a few hours after it was appointed and after he had announced that his own committee intended to go into them.

Black had nothing to say on the subject, but the intention of the senate committee to proceed independently was clear to all who kept in close touch with its activities.

To Talk at Own Request.

O'Connor said Brewster, appearing for rebuttal at his own request, would address himself to the "senate" matter, the conversation that took place in Statuary hall—between the senate and house chambers—just before the house vote on the "death sentence."

In that exchange Brewster contends that Thomas Corcoran, RFC attorney, threatened to stop construction of the Passamaquoddy tidal dam in his district unless Brewster cast his vote for the compulsory abolition feature.

Corcoran testified he told Brewster that if the latter had not voted for the dam, he would no longer be trusted to carry out certain assurances he had given as a preliminary to beginning construction of the dam.

He denied, however, that he had threatened to halt the work. Ernest Gruening, Interior Department official, who was present, upheld Corcoran's version of the incident.

O'Connor said Brewster also had asked that two of his secretaries be permitted to testify. Whether they will or not will be decided by the committee after examining a memorandum expected from Brewster to show that their evidence would be pertinent.

Tomorrow's session, O'Connor said, "will clean up the Brewster thing," and on Wednesday, he hopes to go into the activities of the power companies in opposition to the "death sentence."

ELECTRIC RATES SHOW WIDELY VARIED COSTS

ville and Milledgeville, when the latter cities are figured under the inducement rate schedule. For 250 kilowatt hours the Moultrie rate is 44.6 per cent higher.

The survey report states, however, that differences in charges may be ascribed to various factors and it is "advisable to exercise some caution in making comparison between communities as well as between different types of service."

Some of these factors listed are availability of fuel resources and accessibility of water power, geographic and economic conditions and varying tax policies of the different communities. Density of population, seasonal requirements, presence or absence of large industries, variations in the purchasing power of the people and even climatic conditions may have a marked effect on rates, it is stated.

Referring to these factors the report says:

"Taken all together they fall short of explaining the range of charges from minimum to maximum, which in many cases exceeds 100 per cent. This is a matter of primary public importance and a justification of the rate survey."

Calhoun Rate Lowest.

Calhoun, a municipally owned plant, shows the lowest rate in Georgia, for 25 kilowatt hours consumption per month, the cost being $1.25. The next lowest under the standard rate is a group of Georgia Power Company served cities which pay $1.02, although the same cities under the inducement rate pay only $1.45 for 25 kilowatt hours. Calhoun pays $4.50 for 100 kilowatt hours, compared to $4.57 standard rate for the Georgia Power Company served cities and $3.95 under the inducement rate. The comparison is more favorable to the Georgia Power Company for the 250 kilowatt hour consumers, however, its standard rate being $3.32, and inducement rate $3.57, compared to Calhoun's rate of $3.50.

The highest reported rate, either for 25, 100 or 250 kilowatt consumption is Savannah, with $3.13, $6.19 and $12.26 respectively.

The third fatal accident of the week involving Atlantans was reported here yesterday when it was revealed that W. D. Smith, an auditor, living in College Park, died Sunday of injuries suffered in a 55-foot fall from a cliff at Rabun, Ga.

Mr. Smith was taken to a Franklin, N. C., hospital, where he failed to regain consciousness before his death five hours later. Hospital attaches reported that he had suffered a fracture of the skull.

Mr. Smith is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Smith; two brothers, Harold and L. H. Smith; two sisters, Mrs. A. M. Scrimge and Mrs. C. E. Sanders. The body was brought to College Park in an ambulance from A. C. Hemphrey & Sons. Funeral arrangements will be announced.

during a day featured by a heated attack and defense of the price-fixing provision in the bill.

Weed Farmers Doubtful.

Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, branded it as "unworkable" while Senator Bailey, democrat, North Carolina, replied such a program of price fixing several years ago had "resulted in loss of the crop for an entire year."

While farmers in his state approved the AAA, Bailey said, the tobacco producers viewed "with utmost alarm" any change in their present system of marketing.

It undertakes, the North Carolina senator said, "to offer a reward by means of a minimum price to induce return of a system that practically ruined the farmer for three or four years."

Senator Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, declared the price-fixing program was "entirely unconstitutional" although he could not at once cite for Byrd an instance where it had proved successful in a marketing program.

With foes hacking at the bill from both sides of the chamber, Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina, in charge of it, lashed his committee members for not supporting the amendments which they had attached to the measure after it passed the house. But he won only negative results.

Commodities Dropped.

92-Year-Old Man, Wife Oldest Married Couple

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 15.—(P)—As far as George Mortimer Hopkins and his wife are concerned, there isn't any secret to being happily married.

Hopkins, 92, and his wife, who will celebrate her ninety-second birthday tomorrow, are one of the oldest married couples in the nation. They wed 70 years ago.

Here is the Hopkins' recipe for a happy marriage: courtesy, charity and tolerance.

"I never mix in my wife's affairs and she lets me run my business," said Hopkins, still active as a funeral director and a furniture store owner.

"I never know what my wife has for me to eat until I sit down to the table—what she feeds me is her business."

Inclusion of poultry in the list of commodities subject to marketing agreements and price fixing, said the amendment had been later disapproved by the American Farm Bureau and other agencies. For that reason he asked and received consent to have it eliminated.

Reassembled too, amid laughter, under Senator Glass' democrat, Virginia, attack of ridicule and his charge the measure sought to require him and the secretary of agriculture to regulate the queen bee.

This made nearly a clean sweep of commodities added to the list by the senate committee, for earlier fruits for canning and hops had been trimmed off. Tentatively soy beans were approved but Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, said he may later ask reconsideration of that item.

Further, Senator King, democrat, Utah, gave notice he would seek to committee member who had sponsored have milk removals from the list.

OPPOSITION REMOVED TO TELEVISION CABLE

Scientist Recites Fascinating
Story of Equipment's Development.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(UP)—Atoms tumbling around noisily in telephone wires were responsible for development of the new coaxial cable, which in turn is expected to make television possible, the Federal Communications Commission learned today.

The A. T. & T. sought to establish the cable, which is merely a gas-filled copper pipe, between New Orleans and Philadelphia on an experimental basis for transmission of television images and telephone conversations.

The Western Union and Postal Telegraph Companies withdrew their opposition to it, but Ralph Vatzner, who said he was attorney for the "independent motion picture industry," sought to present a critical brief.

Vatzner urged the telephone company be forced to confine itself to the telephone business.

Dr. Frank B. Jewett, president of Bell Telephone Laboratories, told of the new cable's development.

The tumbling atoms made so much noise in telephone lines several years ago, he said, they blotted out weak signals. The engineers therefore forced the electricity to travel on the outside of a wire, rather than inside it, which thwarted the noise.

The coaxial cable, he added, is merely a development of the carrier circuit.

The cable is in fact merely a copper tube about the diameter of a lead pencil in which is a single copper wire.

No wonder so many of us get up in the morning feeling as tired as when we went to bed—no wonder the world looks blue. If your stomach is full of a thing like vinegar, your food doesn't do you much good. You get only what comes from a sour fermenting mass. You can't help but lose strength, get nervous and feel exhausted all the time. If this acid gets over into the bowels, it upsets their action and you get constipated. Then toxic poisons get into the blood and start a lot of things like headaches, rheumatic pains, bladder irritation, etc.

Don't take salts or purgatives to clean out this sourness—they flush out vital body fluids and leave your system dry and inflamed without helping the cause. Try Placidan, the new medical discovery with the double action. Placidan WIPES out excess acid without disturbing the stomach juices. It forms a soothing coating over raw irritated membranes and helps stop the making of more burning acid. You get RELIEF at once from gas and acid indigestion. Take Placidan regularly for a short time and you'll soon rejoice at the astonishing return of vigor.

NOTE: Say NO if something else is offered to you as being just as good. You have taken these substitutes before and they did you no good. Insist on Placidan.

Blind Boston Beggar Kills Blind Sweetheart

BOSTON, July 15.—(UP)—A blind beggar tossed his blind sweetheart to her death from a hotel window today, hurled her pet dog after her and then surrendered to police.

The pair were registered at a Tremont street hotel as R. Wells and his sister, Miss H. Wells, both of Detroit, Mich., but police identified them as Forrest R. Wells and Miss Hazel Martin, of no permanent address.

"I had to leave her," police quoted Wells. "We couldn't get along together. But I couldn't leave her alone in Boston. She was blind. She had no friends and no money. So I killed her."

Wells said he tossed her out the window "because I loved her so much."

Police found Miss Martin unconscious on the ground beneath an open third-floor window. Beside her was her dog, also critically injured. The woman died at a hospital.

The whole thing is sheathed in lead, which is pumped full of nitrogen gas. The company can tell if there are any leaks. If the gas leaks out, so does the electricity.

The cable, which will cost $585,000 to install, will carry 240 simultaneous telephone conversations on a 1,000,000-cycle wave band, or two television images.

He said it would be at least three or four years before experimentation is completed and the wire is ready for service.

ITALY OPENS PROBE OF COUPLE'S DEATH

Strange Tragedy at Resort
Involves American and British Man.

ROME, July 15.—(P)—Italian authorities opened an investigation today of the strange deaths in a bathing resort of an American art teacher and her male British friend.

Mrs. May Katherine Thompson, 40, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and H. N. Scott, British subject, who was director of the American Express Company in Italy, were found dead yesterday in the sulfur baths at Acque Albule, popular bathing resort near Rome.

An autopsy upon the bodies was ordered by authorities at Tivoli when two glasses containing a red liquid were found near the spot.

Although admitting this might prove to be nothing more than wine, the official requested services of an expert from the Home Legal and Medical Institute to make a test of the liquor.

Earlier doctors had expressed a theory that the couple may have died of asphyxiation from sulfur fumes in sulfur bathhouse. The bodies were brought to a morgue here after their discovery yesterday. Since the deaths took place in the Tivoli judicial district, authorities there are conducting the investigation.

The two went to Acque Albule with friends to swim in the sulfur waters. Mrs. Thompson, whose husband is Edwin P. Thompson, of Brooklyn, arrived as a tourist a little more than a week ago. She was scheduled to go to Florence last night.

The American consulate was notified of her death.

ANNULMENT IS SET FOR YOUNG RYAN

Judge Clears Countess of Misrepresenting Wealth Charge.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(P)—Cledennin J. Ryan Jr., will obtain the marriage annulment he asked for, Supreme Court Justice Salvatore A. Cotillo disclosed today, but his bride, the former Countess Marie-Anne Von Wurmbbrand Stuppach will be cleared of willfully misleading her husband, the justice said.

"She was the victim of circumstances on the other side," the jurist commented as he prepared to sign the findings and file them tomorrow.

Ryan, secretary to Mayor F. H. La Guardia, is the grandson and heir of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, traction magnate.

He charged his wife misrepresented her wealth and other materially important considerations preliminary to marriage, acting as a tool in a conspiracy to enrich certain Europeans at the expense of the Ryan estate.

Justice Cotillo said he did not believe there was any monetary settlement in the case other than the counsel fees.

The former countess is in Vienna. She did not contest the suit.

2 NEGROES LYNCHED BY MISSISSIPPI MOB

COLUMBUS, Miss., July 15.—(P) Two negro farmers were lynched today by a mob in the Mississippi delta and another was pursued by a posse of officers and white citizens across the Mississippi river into Arkansas in connection with attacks or attempted attacks on white women.

Bert Moore and Dooley Morton, each about 26 years old, were snatched from Deputy Sheriff Parker Harris by a motecade mob on the main highway four miles north of Columbus and were whisked to the negro Zion church, eight miles south of the city and hanged to a big oak tree.

Another negro, said by Sheriff J. H. Dugan, of Tallahatchie county, to be Rayfield Sutton, 28, charged with attacking a white farm girl Friday night four miles from Charleston, was pursued to the Arkansas state line by more than 100 citizens and officers with bloodhounds, but the fugitive crossed the Mississippi river and escaped. Arkansas officers were asked to search for him.

5 NUDISTS ARE FINED AFTER WOMEN DANCE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 15.—(UP)—The Sunshine Health League, this city's only indoor nudist colony, received a severe setback from Judge Thomas V. Holland.

Police haled Earl Young, 30, president of the league, and four members into court. Two were women and one was doing a nude dance, officers testified. Officers also brought a bushel basket full of correspondence inquiring about the league.

Brilliantly colored pamphlets showed the cost of joining to be: Single men, $10 and $1 month dues; married couples, $10 and $1 a month dues, and single girls $5 and 50 cents month dues.

Young told the court he had organized the league "for the improvement of Kansas City's health."

The court fined each $250.

NEW INDIAN 'QUAKE Shock of Great Intensity Is Felt at Quetta.

QUETTA, India, July 15.—(P)—An earth shock of great intensity, lasting 15 seconds, was felt here at 11 a.m. today. It was accompanied by strange purring sounds.

Quetta, the "city of death," was already in ruins from an earthquake May 31 in which 26,000 persons died. The total number of deaths throughout the Indian area devastated by that temblor has been estimated at about 60,000.

More than 100 villages were wiped out throughout a surrounding district about 130 miles long and 20 miles wide.

Another severe earth shock was felt at Quetta June 15.

TWO FREED BY JUDGE IN PRISON CAMP CASE

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 15.—(P) Verdicts of acquittal for two of five former prison camp officials charged with mistreating two negro prisoners were directed by Judge Wilson Warlick today when the state closed its case.

Judge Warlick ruled the state had not introduced evidence sufficient to warrant jury deliberation of the charges against T. M. Gordon and J. W. Eudy, former camp guards.

Motions for directed verdicts of acquittal for the other defendants, Henry Little, former convict camp "boss"; Dr. C. S. McLaughlin, former camp physician, and R. C. Rape, former guard, were lodged by the defense and argument of them begun.

CRUSADER WOULD BAN CRIMINAL ATTORNEYS

"Public Defender System"
Urged at Bar Meeting as Surest Way End Crime.

LOS ANGELES, July 15.—(UP)—Startled members of the American Bar Association tonight heard gray-haired Mayor C. Goldman, New York attorney and crusader for the "public defender system" of criminal trials, propose "complete outlawing of the criminal attorney as the surest way to end crime."

Waving his glistering pince-nez before a gallery of America's foremost legal talent, the slender, dapper little lawyer, who for 20 years has battled for state-paid defenders, tossed his thunderbolt into the annual session of the association.

"The surest way to promote crime," he told the assembled lawyers, "is to permit the hiring of private lawyers to defend an accused man. The time has come to put a stop to crooked lawyers who defend crooked gangsters and crooked financiers."

He urged a two-fold purpose in "utterly abolishing" the hired criminal lawyer at bar:
1. It would "equalize justice for rich and poor, alike."
2. It would "strike at the root of the crime problem by taking away the mouthpiece by which the chronic criminal seeks to escape punishment."

"What is the mark of the great criminal attorney," Goldman asked. "His success is measured by the number of guilty men he saves from punishment. The more guilty the defendant is, the more fame to the attorney who gets him off."
"The purpose of practice of private criminal law is to defeat justice in a clever little game between himself and the prosecutor."

Frank Buck's Giant Python, Lion Break From Handlers, Mangle Two

26-Foot Snake Writhes Loose From Six Men, Crushes and Bites One; Another Charged by Jungle Beast During Cage Transfer.

AMITYVILLE, N. Y., July 15.—(AP)—Their jungle blood quickened by the humid heat, a giant python and a shaggy-maned lion went on a rampage at Frank Buck's wild animal camp and injured two men late today. Oris Lloyd, a trainer, was crushed in the deadly coils of the enraged snake, which had writhed loose from the hands of half a dozen handlers and buried its fangs in Lloyd's arm. Stuart Roe, another trainer, fell before the snarling charge of the full-grown lion which broke from his handlers as they were taking it from a temporary cage. Roe's arms and shoulders were ripped and torn by the infuriated beast before he was rescued.

At Reeds hospital attendants said Lloyd was "seriously injured" and an operation had been performed to save Roe's right arm.
The full extent of Lloyd's injuries, they said, would not be determined until after X-rays taken of his entire body had been developed.
The python, a 26-foot monster, was being carried stretched out from the cage in which it had been shipped from the Malay jungle.
Suddenly it convulsed, throwing off the hands of those carrying it and in a flash had whipped itself around Lloyd.

Lloyd shouted for help, but it was fully five minutes, a witness said, before the combined strength of four handlers could drag the coils free of Lloyd's body.
The trapped man quietly gasped directions to those attempting to rescue him. He did not lose consciousness. Most of the trainers on duty were required to subdue the raging lion. Both the lion and the snake were eventually housed in their permanent cages, as the other animals in the camp added to the uproar.
Fred Blue, head elephant trainer at the camp, said Lloyd was "the coolest thing I ever saw."
"He didn't faint, although several times it looked as if he would."
"He is an experienced snake man, though, and knew what to tell the other men to do."
"The animals always get excited when we transfer them from one cage to another, but how that python got loose nobody knows. It all happened like a flash."

Buck is in Singapore, Blue said.

REBEL'S RECEPTION PLEASES RAILROAD

More Than 34,000 See New Streamlined Train In Two-Day Visit.

The large crowds which viewed the two-day showing of "The Rebel," the streamline, aluminum, Diesel-powered train brought to Atlanta by the Gulf, Mobile & Northern railroad, elicited an expression of gratification last night from officials of the Seaboard Air Line road, which sponsored the exhibition.

More than 34,000 persons viewed the latest development in train construction, and the exhibit, which was scheduled to close at 9 o'clock last night, was forced to remain open several hours longer in order not to disappoint the late crowds which continued to pour in. "The Rebel," with its crew and accompanying officials, left for Birmingham at 8 o'clock this morning, where the train will be put on display.

BIG TOBACCO CROP SEEN FOR GEORGIA

Total of 55,880,000 Pounds
Indicated in Latest Report From Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—A bumper tobacco crop for Georgia—55,880,000 pounds—was predicted today by the Georgia crop report, based on conditions July 1.

The report, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the state college of agriculture, said that yields had been reduced "considerably from earlier expectations, due to continued dry weather in May and June, but for the state as a whole, yields are above last year with estimated production of 55,880,000 pounds, about 75 per cent above 1934 production of 31,951,000 pounds."

In Atlanta, figures at the State Bureau of Markets showed 1935 was the last year when a crop of such size was produced. In that year, the yield was 59,853,963, the bureau said.
The crop report said hot dry weather during June reduced prospective yields of most crops, as compared with earlier expectations, and that corn, wheat, potatoes and hay show lower production compared with final esti-

GEORGE'S NEW DEAL

REJECTED BY BRITAIN

Ex-Premier Offers Public Works Program as Basis of Revival.

LONDON, July 15.—(UP)—Britain tonight rejected David Lloyd-George's proposed New Deal.

The cabinet, after a long meeting with Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, voted decisively against Lloyd-George's plan to finance a "prosperity loan" to finance accelerated two-year public works projects.

Lloyd-George titled his publication "Organizing Prosperity."

He wandered into the international field long enough to declare Japan is pushing western powers out of China.

Lloyd-George urged Britain, the soviet union and the United States to agree on a policy as firm as Japan's and then to join with Japan in aiding China's reconstruction.

The government's reply is expected to say some of Lloyd-George's schemes are "absolutely unworkable."

Regardless of the cabinet's attitude, Lloyd-George expects his proposals will be the issue in the coming election.

Lloyd-George estimated his plan would enable the government to settle 500,000 urban Britons on the land and re-employ another 500,000 in industry and as auxiliaries to agriculture.

He urged limitation of the cabinet to the prime minister and four or five ministers and appointment of a national development board to guide efficient state planning.

GOVERNOR M'ALISTER
URGES FRANCHISE TAX

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 15.—(AP)—A franchise tax was held out to the general assembly today by Governor M'Alister as the most effective plug for Tennessee's financial hole, but he emphasized the law-makers were free to explore any other fields of revenue.

Liquor legislation, however, was omitted from his call.

In a 10,000-word message, which the governor read personally at the start of the 20-day extra session, he called upon the legislature to borrow to pay off past indebtedness and then to balance the budget.

He recommended a franchise tax which is a levy on invested capital of corporations, as a supplement to the present 3 per cent corporation excise tax that is imposed on net earnings arising from business done wholly within the state.

Governor M'Alister estimated that the net revenue increase would be $1,750,000 a year and this, together with an additional $500,000 annually auditors said could be expected from reorganization of the finance and taxation department, would be sufficient to make income equal outgo.

Four tax bills started the flow of revenue proposals.

Introduced in the house were bills which would levy taxes on chain stores and amusements, revise inheritance tax schedules and remove exemptions from certain exempt property.

MORE MONEY SOUGHT BY DISABLED VETERANS

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 15.—(AP)—Restoration of all financial benefits lost to them under the national economy act appeared tonight as the major issue before the Disabled Veterans of the World War, as several thousand delegates thronged into New Haven for the national convention which opens tomorrow.

Two of the five candidates who have publicly announced themselves in the fight for the national commandship—Michael A. Whalen, of Detroit, Mich., and Paul Mercier, of Ulica, N. Y.—came forward with this as the principal plank in their platforms.

Representatives of the other candidates for national command, M. A. Harlan, of El Paso, Texas, and Owen Galvin, of Minneapolis, and M. Froome Barbour, of Cincinnati, who are expected in New Haven tomorrow, quoted them as favoring the rehabilitation issue.

Preconvention talk of delegates indicated that the bonus would play only a minor role in the business sessions, which start Thursday.

POPE'S ATTACK BREAKS
VATICAN-NAZI TRUCE

VATICAN CITY, July 15.—(UP)—The precarious truce between the vatican and nazi Germany was shattered today when Pope Pius through his official organ, "Osservatore Romano," vigorously attacked Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's religious policies.

The nazis have imprisoned many priests and nuns on charges of smuggling money out of Germany, nazi attacks on the Catholic youth organization and restriction of religious liberties drew fire from the holy see.

BERLIN, July 15.—(UP)—Catholic communities in south Germany today criticized nazi storm troops after a series of incidents in Muenster district culminating in desecration of a church at Borken.

Nazis reported that a Catholic burned an altar and left false clues to throw blame on storm troopers.

ATLANTAN IS HONORED BY NATIONAL BAR BODY

E. Sayre Gambrell, prominent Atlanta attorney, yesterday was elected chairman of the Conference of Bar Association Delegates of the American Bar Association at its annual meeting now being held in Los Angeles.

The conference of delegates serves as the principal forum in which problems of the legal profession are discussed by the membership of the American Bar Association and Mr. Gambrell was signally honored in election to the chairmanship.

The conference was founded by Elihu Root when he was president of the American Bar Association in 1916, and upon his retirement as president he became chairman of the conference. Another predecessor of Mr. Gambrell in the office is Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

KENNESAW PARK BILL GETS COMMITTEE O. K.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Appropriations for a number of veterans' hospitals, additional dam construction in the Tennessee valley and a long list of other projects were added to the second deficiency appropriation bill today by the senate appropriations committee.

The committee added $73,027,650, bringing the total to $297,505,251, before reporting it to the senate.

One of the items added was:

To create the national memorial military park on Kennesaw mountain, Georgia, $100,000.

F. D. R. SEEKS ACTION ON PURE FOOD LAWS

President Presses Congressional Leaders for Legislation This Session.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today pressed congressional leaders for action this session on legislation to strengthen the pure food and drug laws.

This information was given to the house interstate commerce committee by Chairman Rayburn, democrat, Texas, who will have charge of the senate-approved Copeland bill.

A subcommittee headed by Representative Chapman, democrat, Kentucky, was appointed. Hearings are to be opened next Monday, Chapman said, adding that Rexford G. Tugwell, undersecretary of agriculture, whose original bill was killed in the senate, would be one of the witnesses.

Indicating a division of opinion in the administration over the measure, word was sent to Chapman today by the Federal Trade Commission that it would present witnesses to oppose certain phases of the Copeland bill, Chapman also said he was told the trade commission had hoped the bill would not come up for action at this session.

"The President sent word he wanted the bill passed this session," Chapman said. "The committee will have before it three bills—the Copeland bill passed by the senate, and the Mead and Sirovich measures. I don't know which bill will be the basis for consideration."

Robert H. Pritchard, of Weston, W. Va., president of the National Editorial Association representing 12,000 weekly and small daily newspapers, told Chapman at a conference today that his organization favored the Copeland bill as it passed the senate, but opposed other pending measures.

"Scores of organizations representing the food, drug and cosmetic industries have requested time to present testimony before the committee," Chapman said. "In order to speed up consideration I shall ask each group to select one person to present its arguments for or against the legislation. We hope to get the bill before the house within the next three weeks."

TALMADGE IS BACK

Governor Denies Saying He Would Oppose F. D. R.

Governor Talmadge returned to the capitol yesterday after a visit to Jacksonville, where he inspected Georgia National Guard units in training at Camp Foster, denying here that he told Jacksonville newspapermen that he was a candidate for president against President Roosevelt.

"I told the reporters that I was trying to stop the renomination of Roosevelt," the Governor said.

It is an open secret that while he has made no formal announcement Talmadge has his eye on the White House and that he plans to run against President Roosevelt in a preferential primary here next year.

The governor announced that he had accepted an invitation to speak at Plattsburg, N. Y., in September, the date preceding a scheduled address at Des Moines, Iowa, the last week in the month. He added that he had other speaking engagements under consideration.

U. S. AGENTS BUSY

7 Men, 3 Stills and 104 Gallons, Week-end Toll.

Agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit spent a busy week-end, according to W. K. Johnston, chief agent for Georgia. The "revenuers" raided three stills, arrested seven men and confiscated 104 gallons of prime corn liquor.

The largest raid was near Lovejoy, where the agents descended upon a 440-gallon still and arrested J. T. Copeland, Samuel Teal, Hugh Wallace, Frank Lovern and Eddie Gravitt. Ninety gallons of liquor and 4,000 gallons of mash were destroyed.

Another large still was found near Norcross and W. C. Berry and Ab Christopherson taken into custody. Only two gallons of liquor were discovered at the Norcross still.

The third raid was in Gwinnett county, where three men operating a 220-gallon still made a wild dash for freedom and escaped. Warrants, however, were issued against Clev. Williams, Irvin McCollough and James Camp, whom agents believe to be the men who fled from the still. The raid netted 12 gallons of whiskey.

Trouble Caused by Insane 'Messiahs' Is Stressed by Guards at Capitol

Captain William S. Orthman Declares Such Persons Are Attracted To Washington To Tell Congressmen What Is Wrong With Country.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—The man who guards the lives and peace of the nation's lawmakers said today mildly insane "Messiahs" cause more trouble at the capitol than criminals and radicals put together.

"We know how to deal with violent agitators and with ordinary prowlers," said Captain William S. Orthman, commander of the capitol guard, "but we often wonder what in the world to do with a particular type of nut that seems to be attracted by congress."

This type, he declared, is usually harmless but is persistent. "It includes both men and women. Usually they once had some money but have lost everything and this has got to prey on their minds. They come to the capitol, determined to tell congress what is wrong with the country."

Two or three such persons turn up every week, he said.

It is Captain Orthman's policy to do what he can to humor them, listen to their stories and theories and if possible get them to leave quietly.

"But it is often not as easy as it sounds," he said.

Sometimes he has members of congress get in touch with relief agencies in the state from which the demented visitor has come and provide railway fare back home.

These people usually are spotted by the 61 members of the capitol guard as they attempt to enter the offices of legislators or as they try to get into the galleries.

"Most persons are perfectly behaved when they visit the capitol," said Orthman. "We have more than 2,000,000 visitors every year. More than 9,000,000 automobiles pass over the capitol grounds."

LEGAL WHISKY SALES BEGIN IN N. CAROLINA

HENDERSON, N. C., July 15.—(AP)—Whisky went on sale here today legally for the first time in 26 years as Vance county's liquor control stores opened for business.

The county voted wet recently under a law passed by the last legislature legalizing liquor in a number of eastern counties if approved in referendum.

10 KILLED, 32 INJURED IN REICH MINE BLAST

Nearly 700 Rescued From Gas and Fire Half-Mile Underground.

DORTMUND, Germany, July 15.—(AP)—Fears of a huge loss of life through an explosion and subsequent fire in a coal mine here were removed tonight when a roll call established that all men had been accounted for.

Ten miners were killed and 32 injured when the explosion rocked the mine half a mile under the earth and then set fire to the shaft. It was first believed many of the 700 miners underground had been entombed but the check-up disclosed they had reached the surface safely.

Public excitement immediately abated and anxious wives and families who had crowded around the pithead quickly melted away.

Officials of the mine refused to give details of the explosion.

5 Fair Officials Quit.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 15.—(UP)—Zack T. Farmer, managing director of the Pacific International Exposition, and four other exposition officials resigned today.

The officials said "continued San Diego antipathy toward what is termed the 'foreign management' of the fair was responsible for their action."

70 DIVORCE CASES HEARD IN ONE DAY

Men Predominate in Large Number of Suits in Superior Court.

The marital woes of 70 couples were aired in court yesterday as Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton superior court, began hearing of undefended divorce cases.

Humor and pathos were mingled as husbands and wives told of the shortcomings of their mates. Mostly the grounds for divorce were given as cruelty and drunkenness, but occasionally a unique reason for incompatibility came out.

One man said his wife started things off badly when she insisted on several occasions that he get up late at night and go fetch her some snuff. Then she began to abuse him in other ways, such as throwing milk bottles at him.

Their wedded life lasted four years. Another man told of the cruelty with which his mate treated him. She had a systematic method of abuse. She frequently talked all night just to keep him from sleeping, he said. This interfered with his work and his health.

A personable young woman told how her wedded difficulties had caused her great worry. Since leaving her husband a few months ago, she said, she had gained from 113 pounds to 128. Once her husband beat her because she didn't know where his "nose drops" were, she declared.

Of the 70 cases heard yesterday, there was a predominance of men seeking freedom from their wives and many husbands charged their spouses with habitual drunkenness and with staying out late at night with other men.

STIFLING SOUTHERN INDUSTRY

The extent to which southern industry is being stifled by unfair and discriminatory freight rates is revealed in the statement of Chairman Jud Wilhoit, of the Georgia Public Service Commission, in which he pleads for "an even break for our industries with their competitors in other sections."

In emphasizing the destructive effect of the new interstate rates ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Chairman Wilhoit cites the instance of a Quilman manufacturing company that has been selling its product in Georgia at $10 a ton but which under the new rates will have to pay freight charges of $3.60 a ton. Naturally, he comments, "the company has quit business and the railroads have lost the revenue received from this source."

A carload of watermelons from Thomsville brings at present market prices about $300 in New England, but $217 goes for freight and $62.50 for preparation of the car and for brokerage fees. Hence the grower gets only about $20 for producing and shipping some 800 melons.

It is not surprising that many growers are letting their melons rot in the fields.

Georgia industries are suffering equally from the preferential rates granted to manufacturers in other sections.

Chairman Wilhoit points out that cotton textiles shipped from Macon to Toledo, a distance of 759 miles, must pay a freight rate of 99 cents per hundred pounds, while the same materials can be shipped from Boston to Toledo, a distance of 760 miles, for 91 cents.

Kaolin shipped from Georgia to Indianapolis, a leading market for this product, carries a freight rate of $1.19, for the distance of 652 miles, while the rate for this product from Baltimore to Indianapolis, a distance of 650 miles, is only 90 cents.

The rate on peanuts, a major Georgia agricultural product, from Columbus, Ga., to New York, a distance of 994 miles, is 93 cents per hundred pounds, but only 84 cents from St. Louis to New York, a distance of 1,059 miles.

Stone from Tate, Ga., pays a freight rate of $1.14 a ton for the 737-mile trip to Grand Rapids, Mich., but the same product can be shipped the three miles longer distance from Proctor, Vt., for $9.40.

So it is with all of the major industrial and many of the agricultural products of the south, which must face the unfair and inexcusable handicap of discriminatory freight rates in meeting, in many of the largest markets of the country, the competition of similar products from other sections.

The south has suffered too long from the stifling of its industrial and agricultural development by the preferential rates granted, especially to New England, by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Despite the continued protest of commercial and civic organizations in the south, the commission has refused to put out manufacturers and farmers on an equal freight-rate basis with those of other sections. Chairman Wilhoit forcefully points out that "there is no excuse for such discrimination against the south and the people should rise up against such rates and force the L. C. C. to give our industries an even break with their competitors in other sections."

The unfair treatment accorded the south by the commission is intolerable and indefensible and its elimination should be demanded by the united delegations in congress from every southern state.

There must be something in spirit photography. A press picture from New Orleans shows a Governor of Louisiana as distinctly as if he existed.

EDUCATION IN GEORGIA

Georgia parents should give careful consideration to the manifold advantages offered by Georgia colleges and preparatory schools as during the next few weeks they consider the selection of the institutions to which they will send their boys and girls this fall.

No state in the Union is more richly supplied with splendid educational institutions than Georgia, and the thorough nature of the instruction given is evidenced by the success with which graduates of Georgia colleges and schools have met in every field of endeavor.

Since the founding in Georgia of the first state university in America the high standards of our educational institutions have been nationally recognized. Especially is this true with reference to the sound basic qualities of the instruction given to the young men and women and the boys and girls attending the various colleges and schools in the state.

The young people at school in their home state do not come into contact with the radical influences which they are thrown in educational institutions elsewhere, many of which have become hotbeds of communist and other subversive activities among their student bodies.

The associations formed during college life have a major effect upon the young, and those who attend educational institutions in other sections of the country are lamentably apt to lose the southern perspective on social and economic problems. All too often these associations cause graduates to remain in other states, causing permanent separation from their families and causing their communities to lose potential leaders in public and business life.

The finest instruction along every educational line is offered by the colleges and schools of Georgia and they should be given first choice by parents when the time comes to plan the training of boys and girls who have completed grammar and high school courses. It has been conclusively proven that the graduates of Georgia institutions can successfully compete in every line of endeavor with the graduates of the larger, but no more efficient, schools and colleges of other sections.

More than everything else, the southern boy and girl retains in southern institutions the priceless heritage of the principles and viewpoints to which they are born and which are instilled in them during their childhood days.

RECKLESS DRIVING RUNS RIOT

Two deaths over the week-end on the streets of Atlanta, with numerous injuries, as the result of automobile crashes, emphasizes the necessity of more stringent enforcement of the traffic laws to curb the sudden increase during the past few weeks of reckless disregard of the ordinances designed to safeguard both automobilists and pedestrians.

The two deaths are the result, according to police reports, of flagrant violation of the driving laws, one being caused when a speeding car struck a pedestrian on the Spring street viaduct and the other when a car being driven on the wrong side of the street crashed into another at a busy intersection.

The wonder is that there are not more fatalities in view of the perilous conditions that exist on the streets of the city. The flaunting of the safety laws by reckless drivers causes even law-abiding automobilists and pedestrians to take their lives in their hands when they make use of the public thoroughfares.

The situation is so intolerable as to demand a vigorous and intensive drive by the traffic officers to round up the drunken and reckless drivers who are regardless neither of their own safety or that of others.

The efforts of the arresting officers should be backed to the limit by the courts, as they have in the past, and the offenders either sent to jail or removed from behind the steering wheel for long periods.

Atlanta was one of the leaders among American cities last year in the loss of life from automobile accidents and at the present rate will top all other cities this year.

There is no valid reason for such a showing, except the non-enforcement of the traffic laws. The laws are not as stringent as they should be, but other cities with better records have no more efficient ordinances and, in many of them, the arrangements of the streets make traffic control more difficult.

The police cannot expect to arrest all of the reckless drivers who now dash along Atlanta's streets with but little danger of arrest, but if a goodly portion of them are locked up and given stern punishment the others will quickly realize that it will not be safe to continue to flaunt the traffic laws.

A gold treatment for arthritis is offered the sufferer. It might be wise to wait until the courts decide whether rheumatism is constitutional.

World's Window

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Thirty-Five Per Cent.

Suddenly, unexpectedly the British government has launched a pact with Germany under the provisions of which the fleet is allowed to build a fleet up to 35 per cent of the strength of the British navy, and in addition any number of submarines Berlin may deem necessary for her defense. France in its entirety is shocked at this strange maneuver of England, which had but recently given its word that nothing would be undertaken without a consultation of Paris. However, the stunt has been pulled off now. It gives rise to two questions. Who is the potential enemy against whom Germany is allowed to arm? Who menaced Germany on the water that she should require such a formidable fleet, for 65 per cent of the British navy that is equal in size to the French and Italian fleets respectively. Stripped from all equivocation and diplomatic language, the British-German pact makes Germany supreme in the Baltic sea. The Baltic sea was one of the highways along which France would have sent reinforcements to her Russian ally in the event of Russia being attacked by Germany. That highway is now closed to French warships. Great Britain has put a spoke in the wheels of the Franco-Russian alliance.

The Other Results.

When Germany starts to build a fleet, as she is permitted to do now under the Anglo-German naval pact (she started long ago), the Scandinavian countries, who are without question the most pacific states in the world, must be seriously alarmed and consequently they, too, begin to build more battleships now. Germany, with a fleet of ships that France will build up. If France builds, Italy follows suit.

The United States of America cannot remain passive in the face of an increase in the British navy. Great Britain will be dragged along herself in the naval race, with all those vast changes in the world's map that other words the race is on. Disarmament in the air, on land and on sea is an idea that has been killed for good. Mankind is committed to a titanic competition which will burden the already heavily-burdened peoples and the end will be inevitably disaster.

France Gloomy.

Immediate reinforcement of the famous steel wall on France's eastern borders has already been considered. The French government has decided to build a new line of defense, the Anglo-German naval pact, which the French government interprets as a violation of the League of Nations pact of collective security. The cost of the reformation of the French defenses will be five billion francs. Nothing remains for France but to rely on her own strength. The Prime Minister Edouard Daladier said to me in the corridors of the chamber of deputies on the day when parliament was in session that the new military credits, and Gabriel Perrier, a deputy for Corsica, whom I encountered in the same place, added: "The British have always acted as if they did not care for the security of France, and as statesmen thought that this was simply a case of shortsightedness."

"It turns out that Britain wanted Germany to remain, so that there might be an excuse for her to start rearming. Britain has been Hitler's chief encourager. We ought to be on our guard hereafter and see that we do not let her get away with Albion's double-dealing. The pact just concluded between Britain and Germany is not considered a step toward peace everywhere. Not a journeyman in Germany, except in Germany where only one man has an opinion, had a good word for that pact."

Mary Ann Morse Baker

Mary Ann Morse Baker was born in Row, N. H., in 1821, destined to organize a religious denomination which today has 250,000 members. She was the first woman to be elected into the Congressional church; 22 when she married George Washington Glover; 40 when she became interested in the work of Phineas Parkhurst Quimby, Portland, psychotherapist; 52 when she divorced Parkerson; 54 when the first edition of her "Science and Health" was published; 55 when she married 40-year-old Asa Gilbert Eddy, who died six years later of heart disease; 80 when she died 25 years ago this year of pneumonia.

Gold dollars that were still in circulation in 1894 were worth $2.85 in paper dollars.

The government had made the greenback legal tender for all debts but wouldn't accept this status of its own in payment for customs duties.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

HEAT WAVE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The beads you see on the brows of congressmen these days are not due to the weather, but to a certain political heat wave. Excellent cooling systems at the capitol are not adequate to combat the record temperatures being raised by the senate committee investigating the utilities lobby.

The basic motive behind that investigation has not been a secret. The New Deal congressional board of strategy decided more or less openly that the only way to save its original Wheeler-Rayburn bill, after the house defeat, was to dig up and broadcast the transgressions of the power people. It was arranged that Senator Wheeler would delay the bill until the investigators had built a publicity backfire which would make it hot for those congressmen who opposed the New Deal version of the bill.

The initial success of the endeavor has been more than the most enthusiastic New Dealers expected.

DEVASTATION

Anyone who has been watching congressmen closely the last few days could almost see a few of them wilt. The leading New Dealers say that a dozen or more house members have already indicated a desire to change their votes, before the Turkish bath torture goes any further. However, at least 35 must change, if the New Deal is to win. This will take some time, if it can be accomplished at all.

The prospects were greatly enlivened by the strong majority rolled up in the house for the New Deal TVA amendments last week. Every insider realized the swerving implications behind that vote.

Furthermore, the power people themselves are glum. They do not know how to combat this sort of thing. One confessed mournfully a few days ago that he thought the jig was up; that it is only "a question of what congress will do to us."

SLIP-UPS

What is helping the New Deal game along is the fact that the power lobby, as usual, overplayed its hand in some instances. A typically idiotic incident is one which happened to Chairman Rayburn, of the house committee in charge of the legislation. He has never told about it, but about a month ago he received over 100 letters from the small town of Denison, Texas. All were virtually identical in wording and all urged him to defeat his own bill.

Rayburn acknowledged these letters and was surprised to find that 52 of his acknowledgments came back undelivered because the postman could find no such persons living at the addresses given. A check-up indicates that many of the names were those of persons no longer living, or who had moved away from town. Some were children, under voting age.

Another slip-up occurred when workers of a utility plant in a Texas city were ordered to write letters against the bill. The company supplied the stationery and stamped envelopes. Most of the employees tucked bare sheets of paper into the envelopes and sent them to congressmen at Washington. One of the congressmen who thus received a blank piece of paper investigated and found out what happened.

Ordinarily, when the defendants are permitted to judge their own cases, you may expect a quick acquittal. But they have been unduly influenced by the power lobby or the President's lobby, are so excited over this issue that they are unsheathing knives against each other and eying each other's backs.

Intrigues and counter-intrigues have sprung up behind the investigations to an unprecedented extent.

For instance, some New Deal congressmen in the house are cutting ground underneath the house investigators. They do not trust that inquiry entirely. Secretly they are digging up data against their colleagues and furnishing it to the senatorial investigators instead of to their own investigators. One congressman who is doing that asserts he has evidence indicating that some of his colleagues are on the payroll of utilities companies as attorneys. He promises to "rock the capital."

A second congressman is trying to find proof that one of the house investigators has a brother in Maine for whom Congressman Brewster has been seeking a postmastership.

VACATION?

Some of President Roosevelt's political friends have been looking lately into the summer retirement of Father Coughlin from the political arena. They wonder whether it is just for the summer, or how long.

It is customary for the radio priest to stop broadcasting during the summer months. No suspicions were aroused by that. But you may recall that he started last spring on a campaign to speak at mass meetings in the 12 states with the largest votes. Only four such meetings were held. A fifth is planned at Chicago, where Father Coughlin is suing the park board to get Soldiers' field. But apparently the other seven are off.

Silhouettes

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Dear God, won't you please let me
Ere to the graveyard I go,
If heavenly peace won't bring me
surcease
From that dratted, that durned
radio.

You think you have bad breaks! Listen to this:
There's a girl in Atlanta who, a few months ago, was with friends in an automobile. A peaceful, quiet Sunday drive. A reckless driver smashed into their car, turning it over, and the girl of this story came out of the wreck with three broken ribs and a cracked collarbone. She was in the hospital for several weeks and when she came out her job was gone.

She got better and hunted a new position. Early last week she found one.

And last Friday night she was in another automobile wreck for which she was at blame. The car was first. The time the doctors say she'll live, but she has a broken back and may not walk again.

Added Attraction
On a Trolley Ride.

It was in a street car, coming to town, that the man and woman, untried whiskers, as flaming red as his curly head of hair. He stood at the front of the car and preached an incoherent sort of impromptu sermon.

Then he walked up and down the aisle. He rested his hand for a moment or two on the head or shoulder of each passenger, recited a verse of Scripture and invoked a blessing. He yelled Scripture verses and blessings at passing trolleys and automobiles. Some of the passengers in the street car and others objected and tried to avoid him.

Drunk? Certainly, but not on alcohol.

Fingertips of Fear
Brushed Lightly By.

At Sweetwater swimming pool, Sunday afternoon, a father missed his 12-year-old son. He had seen him jump in the water and hadn't seen him come to the surface again.

The lifeguard searched every inch of the bottom, though it seemed absurd to imagine the boy could have drowned. The pool was full of swimmers and the water so clean and clear you could 'most read the date on a dime at the bottom.

But they thought, with fear, perhaps. So they phoned for the pulmotor while everyone hunted the waters.

Finally, dredging it, the father caught the boy's mother's son. The boy himself answered the telephone. He'd decided he didn't want to swim, after all, and had gone home without anyone seeing him leave.

TODAY'S YESTERDAYS.

July 16, 1790.—The District of Columbia was established, as congress agreed 10 square miles on the Potomac river as the new seat of national government, and named Thomas Johnson, David Stuart and Daniel Carroll, of Maryland, to make the necessary arrangements.

David Burnes, who owned the site selected for the presidential mansion, didn't want to sell it. He gave in only after he was threatened with a forced sale. He received $125 an acre, and the other 18 from whom plots were bought within the 10-mile area. They were allowed to retain every other lot in the district not needed for public buildings.

Their descendants subsequently have received fortunes from the government for land it once gave away!

FIRST OF ALL.

Adhesive postage stamps were 100 years old before they were adopted by the United States postoffice in 1847. The first postage stamps were issued by M. de Chamousset, Frenchman who operated a private postal service in Paris.

How ago private postal services competed with government postal systems and did it profitably, while government systems lost money. In seeking to eliminate dupes, governments destroyed postal monopolies, and continued to lose money!

THE WORLD WAR 20 YEARS AGO TODAY.

July 16, 1915.—Warships used the Panama canal for the first time. They were neutral ships, of course, the Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin. The canal was open to cargo vessels without restriction, but naval units of belligerent countries were barred. No one had any doubt now, however, after the casting aside of so many other international agreements, that either side would have hesitated to make the use of the canal with warships if expediency dictated it. It was apparent that in expending $800,000,000 to build the 50-mile waterway and additional millions to maintain it for the benefit of all nations, Uncle Sam was storing up trouble for himself in this or future wars; that the canal was being arranged for the purpose of involving him in any conflict of eastern and western powers. Here was a future portent.

Same day, news came from far behind the battlefront that was important as anything happening in the front lines, another portent of the future. The South Wales miners went on strike, demanding a new minimum wage higher than the previous maximum. The government tried to force a settlement, and then had to become conciliatory. David Lloyd George, who had been in the cabinet, was dismissed, and a new government was formed. The strike was ended by a compromise. The price of coal shot up everywhere, putting new pressure on the front. And other labor groups were emboldened to make demands. Thereafter so-called labor troubles were frequent, and labor won its fact, war-seeing statesmen grasped the fact that no longer could they proceed without unrest at home, and proved that the enemy would have it worst.

WRITING WRONGS.

You can't prove—
That Lincoln said, "You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

Authorities deny that the thought originated with Lincoln, and they like to reject it. But to whom it is also attributed, as the author, no positive evidence has ever been found to establish the origin of the quotation.

In Georgia Fields and Streams

BY H. A. CARTER.

There is a lot to be seen almost anywhere if you take the trouble to look about you. Even an old building on an abandoned farm will tell you a great deal about the life of the man who lived there. The utility of man's works compared with natural processes. The old shack I have in mind is now in the last stages of decay and shelters a multitude of animals.

In one corner the roof might as well be adobe, for the mud-daubing wasps have claimed it for their own and have plastered it thoroughly with their nests. It is interesting to sit on a rotting joist where the floor has completely disappeared and watch the shiny black insects at work on these nests. They appear very busy all the time, but it is hard to tell where they are working. Only the growth of the nest shows what is accomplishing the untiring labor of the wasps. The sight of these insects brings to mind something of the way we work a few days ago—the directness of form and habits of the insects in general.

The wasps themselves are a tremendously interesting group. I have a few of them in a jar. They are cocoons I collected several years ago and which hatched not spiders, but wasps? I had half a dozen or so eggs of the common garden wasp, and I was writing spider, arachnid. I had in mind keeping the young spiders under observation and learning something of their growth and development. I was not in the course of events, however, that this should happen. All that I got from the eggs was a number of small wasps.

So, not knowing just what to think I put two of the specimens in a alcohol and sent them off to the Bureau of Entomology in Washington. I enclosed a stamp for a reply, in my colossal ignorance of the procedure of government agencies. I had a very nice letter back from the chief of the bureau, who took enough time to answer my childish scribble and tell me that the specimens had been referred to the division of taxonomy and that he would let me know what my specimens were in a few days. He returned my stamp, too, which impressed me no end.

Sure enough, a few days later there came a letter from the Bureau of Entomology. It was a letter from the chief of the bureau, who took enough time to answer my childish scribble and tell me that the specimens had been referred to the division of taxonomy and that he would let me know what my specimens were in a few days. He returned my stamp, too, which impressed me no end.

Clement Clarke Moore.

Clement Clarke Moore was born in New York City in 1773, destined to be a distinguished teacher and scholar for 40 years—and to be remembered only because he wrote "A Visit From St. Nicholas," which is usually misquoted as "The Night Before Christmas." He died in 1842, and his poem or publication didn't allow his name to be attached to it for 22 years, and never received payment for it!

You Can't Drive the Oxen Past a Stream

Where They Usually Stop To Drink

BY ROBERT QUILLEN.

Give me any man a soft snap which he does not deserve and he has no right to expect, and within a year he will regard it as his vested right and defend it with his heart's blood.

You know that is true, for you have seen it demonstrated. And unless human nature changes, which isn't probable, you will see it demonstrated by the Japanese if America doesn't take steps to prevent it.

There's no sense in scolding the Japs. They are hard-working, thrifty, efficient poor boys, trying to get along in a hard world. They have us licked, but they aren't hitting below the belt.

The explanation of their success is simple enough. It is self-sacrificing. Japanese factory workers are paid from 2 to 5 cents an hour. To us that would mean unbearable hardship; for them it provides the food, clothing, sanitation and shelter they desire, and enables them to feel respectable and hold their heads high as our skilled workers do.

Doing their best for little reward is their idea of patriotism. It is their way of serving their emperor and their god, proving the superiority of their race and getting ahead of the uppity white man.

They do not strike or cripple their country to get their "rights"; they are willing to work 10 hours a day, they handle more machine units than American workers, in short, they are like football players whose first ambition is to help the team win.

And this cheap and efficient labor is not the only advantage enjoyed by the manufacturer. His machinery is new and therefore more efficient than ours. And his government encourages him to make great profits, for profits provide taxes and add to the wealth of the nation.

The result is that the Japanese manufacturer undersells the world. Whether he is making cotton cloth, rubber heels, bicycles or electric motors, he can import his raw material, process it, ship the product across the ocean, and there sell it profitably below the American cost of manufacture.

There is no way to beat him. Today he decides to manufacture another article; installs the best machinery; trains workers; and lo! one more unit of the world's market is destined to become a Japanese monopoly. It is simply a matter of time and mathematics.

How can the American manufacturer save himself? The only possible way is to shut out competition he can't meet.

It can be done now, simply and without any offense. But if we wait until the Japs have built up a great business and learned to regard it as their vested right, any belated effort to take it away from them will cause such a row as we haven't yet seen.

CALLAWAY'S MEMORY HONORED AT LAGRANGE

10,000 Employees Pay Tribute to Founder of Chain of Textile Plants.

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Commemorating today in honor of the late founder, Fuller E. Callaway Sr., 10,000 employees of the Callaway Mills, the chain of cotton textile plants in Georgia and Alabama took part in a varied memorial day program here.

The program, arranged by committees of more than 400 persons, opened impressively when overseers from the various plants placed a wreath at the foot of the tower erected by employees several years ago to the memory of the beloved founder.

Every phase of the day's exercises was attended by the honor guests of the employees, Cason J. Callaway, president of the mills, and Mrs. Callaway; Fuller E. Callaway Jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Callaway and Mrs. Fuller E. Callaway Sr.

In the track meet held this morning on Callaway field, the silver loving cup offered annually was won by a team from Unity Spinning plant.

A chartered train of the A. B. and C. railroad brought employees of the Tullahoma plant of the Callaway Mills, from Roanoke, Ala., to join the celebration.

At noon, a barbecue dinner was served to an estimated 9,500 persons in a meadow near the mill general offices.

This was the sixth such celebration of the birthday of the mill executive who died seven years ago after building the large chain of textile plants.

This year's program differed from others in the respect that employees asked for and received the privilege of financing and arranging the day's program. Heretofore, the expense has been borne by the mill management. The employees were given today off with pay.

Addressing his remarks to the birthday celebration committee, for all the employees, Cason Callaway said: "I want to thank you for myself, and for my brother, Fuller, for your interest in making today's exercises a success, and for the spirit you've shown."

"It was felt that my father worked hard enough during his lifetime for all of us to take a day off each year in memory of him."

"When you expressed a desire this year to have your own program and provide your own barbecue, I was glad. The fine spirit of friendship and co-operation shown has made me very happy. I want to thank you and tell you I think you've done a splendid job."

EDUCATIONAL NEEDS CITED BY SHEPPERSON

WPA Leader in Georgia
Speaks at Annual Conference in Athens.

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Citing today's relief rolls as proof of the need for education, Miss Gay B. Shepperson, Georgia Works Progress administrator, tonight told the educational conference of the University of Georgia that America must make sure that its future citizens are equipped with knowledge.

With Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, presiding, Miss Shepperson made the chief address at the opening session of the conference and said:

"It is our responsibility that we analyze this economic calamity. We must recognize ways and means of preventing another."

The WPA administrator told the educators that the average education of those on federal relief rolls has been less than fourth-grade level. "They were not armed for the struggle and of course they went down," she said.

H. A. Woodward, educational supervisor of the FEPA for Georgia, told the FEPA teachers that they should "help the people to begin thinking about solving their own problems."

Dr. John T. Wheeler, university education professor, said education of the "new era" must develop individuals "who will concern themselves with improvement of conditions in our several institutions."

The conference will continue through Thursday.

Tomorrow the parent-teacher institute, conducted by the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, will open. The institute, an annual affair, will meet during the sessions of the educational conference. It is held through co-operation of the University of Georgia.

"Adapting the parent-teacher movement to the present-day needs in education" will be the theme of the parent-teacher meeting.

Mrs. Charles D. Center, of College Park, president of the Georgia congress, and Mrs. W. I. Flanagan, of Athens, general chairman of the institute, will be in charge of the institute program. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, and director of the educational conference, Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the university system, and Jesse Wells, Fulton county school superintendent, will be among speakers at the institute.

State Senator W. M. Lester, of Augusta, chairman of the legislative committee studying state governmental problems; Zach Arnold, secretary of the State Municipal Officers' Association; State Representative W. D. Lannier, of Augusta; T. Hicks Fort, Columbus attorney and civic leader; J. Harold Saxon, Quitman school superintendent; Huxman Stephens, of Rome, district Rotary Club governor of Georgia, and Mrs. Center are among speakers on tomorrow's education conference program.

ARTHUR J. CARR, 82, DIES AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Outstanding Business, Civic Leader for Half Century
Is Taken by Death.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Arthur J. Carr, 82, one of Milledgeville's outstanding business and civic leaders for more than half a century, died at his home here today after a short illness.

Mr. Carr was active in the management of A. J. Carr Company, wholesale grocers, until a few weeks ago when he decided to retire from business and remain at his home. His health declined rapidly and last week he was confined to his bed. He died today at 9 a. m.

As a young man, Mr. Carr entered business here and has built one of the largest wholesale houses in this section. He took an active part in the rebuilding of the city and had participated in every movement for civic betterment.

He was a leader in the Baptist church and for more than 20 years was chairman of the board of deacons. Mr. Carr was one of the city's most beloved residents.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. E. A. Tigner, of Milledgeville, and Mrs. Wiley Warden, of Milledgeville, and three sons, Conn Carr and Arthur Carr Jr., of Milledgeville, and Dr. Henry Carr, a member of the medical service of the Rockefeller Foundation now stationed in Cuba.

Funeral services for Mr. Carr will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church here. Rev. J. M. Teresi will officiate and burial will be in City cemetery.

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED IN BURGLARY PROBE

Arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary, Claude Baldwin, 22, of 412 Georgia avenue, S. E., is being held while detectives seek to determine ownership of some of the loot recovered and to ascertain the number of "jobs" pulled by the suspected man. Radio Patrolmen J. A. Bailey and R. R. Davis received a call to a cafe on Piedmont avenue, where they found several negroes who pointed out Baldwin as the man who had offered them $1 to dispose of some clothes and jewelry. Baldwin, they said, had threatened to shoot them if they notified the police.

Police were informed that the loot was hidden in Piedmont park, and on searching the park they found two separate hiding places in the shrubbery which yielded approximately $100 worth of clothing and watches. When taken into custody, Baldwin was wearing a wrist watch and had another in his pocket.

WALLACE OPPOSES SUBSIDY FOR PULP

Says "Wiseest Course" Is Not to Underwrite or Protect New Industry.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Development of the American pulp and paper industry to the fullest extent possible without resorting to subsidy or tariff was urged by Secretary Wallace today in a report to the senate.

With proper forest conservation on a sustained yield basis, he said, production might be expected in a few decades to supply as much as 500,000,000 acres of forest land.

"Whether it would be for the best interest of the country," the secretary said, "to become completely self-sufficient in wood pulp and paper, or whether it would be best to continue to import part of our requirements in exchange for commodities we export, cannot be accurately forecast at this time.

He said the government now was using the reciprocal tariff to build up foreign markets for farm products, so "it does not seem wise to recommend that the United States strive to become fully self-supporting in paper and pulp requirements."

"The safest course," the secretary concluded, "seems to be to go ahead with the national program of forestry which will require several decades to become effective, to give every public countenance and encouragement short of subsidy or tariff to the development of the American pulp and paper industry and to place no obstacles in the way of replacement of existing imports by the domestic industry in open competition."

NET THIEVES $1,189

Merchandise and Jewelry Missing; One Negro Is Arrested.

Burglars made two heavy hauls early yesterday morning, police were informed, and in one instance the loot was recovered and the alleged thief arrested.

At the Olive Marion Shop, 603 Peachtree street, thieves forced their way into the store through a rear window and made their escape with assorted merchandise valued in excess of $814.75. A check revealed that various goods to this value had been stolen in addition to other items.

Mrs. L. Bloomberg, of 818 Springdale road, reported to police that while moving yesterday from a North avenue address she had left jewelry valued at $375 in a closet. When she returned for the jewelry, she said, she found Vestie Jones, negro, of 308 Terry street, S. E., painting the room. He denied he had obtained the jewelry but police reported that they recovered the loot at Jones' home. Jones was held on suspicion.

ROOSEVELT APPROVES
S. C. POWER PROJECT

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Approval of another huge public works power project—the proposed $37,500,000 development on the Santee and Cooper rivers in South Carolina—was given today by President Roosevelt.

In a letter to Senator James F. Byrnes, the President said he will approve a grant of 45 per cent of the estimated cost with the balance of $20,625,000 to be loaned at 4 per cent interest to be amortized over a period of 30 years.

Release of the funds, however, was conditioned upon the constitutionality of the South Carolina Public Service Authority, created by the state legislature to pursue the development.

Under the proposed plan, a huge hydro-electric plant would be constructed on the Cooper river near Pinopolis, S. C., and water would be diverted from the Santee river into the Cooper at a point near Manning, S. C., to provide greater water power.

EXERCISES PLANNED FOR ROAD OPENING

COLUMBUS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Exercises planned to mark the formal opening of the last link in the Florida short route through Georgia Thursday will be conducted by President Ben Russell, of the FSR Association and Chairman W. E. Wilborn, of the State Highway Department. They are scheduled to take place at the beginning of the new roadway in Webster county on arrival of a big motorcade at that point.

Ribbons will be stretched across the roadway. Miss Latimer Watson, editor of the woman's department, will represent the Columbus Ledger-Enquirer and Mrs. R. T. McIntosh, wife of the publisher of the Albany Herald, will represent that newspaper in the exercises, shaking hands over the ribbon. The latter to be followed then by a young lady of Webster county. Brief speeches will follow.

Other plans for the motorcade are being completed.

UNIVERSITY STUDENT
HELD IN DEATH CRASH

ATHENS, Ga., July 15.—(AP)—Chief of Police E. W. Wood tonight said a young man booked as D. D. O'Callaghan, a University of Georgia student whose home is in Eastman, was being held following an accident in which a negro woman was killed.

Chief Wood said O'Callaghan was the driver of an automobile which struck and killed Emma Kendrick, 65, this morning on the outskirts of the city. The youth, Chief Wood said, was held on charges of reckless driving and after a coroner's inquest was turned over to Clarke county authorities pending a further hearing.

The defendant, Baldwin said, "is expected to claim the shooting was an accident."

DISSENSION FLARES AT COTTON MEETING

Refusal of Chairman To Allow Move Indorsing 'New Deal' Stirs Farmers' Ire.

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—(AP)—The first session of the all-south cotton conference ended here tonight with farmers shouting "We're going home," while Chairman Joseph Haspel said proceedings were adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Dissension flared out in the meeting being sponsored by the New Orleans Association of Commerce, when Chairman Haspel refused to accept a resolution proposed by J. M. Hanley, cotton farmer of Lake Providence, La., that the meeting officially indorse the present federal cotton program. Hanley's resolution was quickly seconded by other farmers and Chairman Haspel explained his action.

Haspel said the Association of Commerce had decided no resolution would be accepted from the floor during the meeting.

Walter Randolph, a cotton planter of Orville, Ala., immediately moved for adjournment, and this was seconded, but again the chair refused to accept the resolution.

For a time it appeared the meeting would end in a riot as farmers clamored for recognition.

The chairman reported that as there were no delegates from all states and all sections of the cotton industry, a resolution at the present time would be out of order.

J. Smith, of Blytheville, Ark., acting as peacekeeper, urged the members of the farm delegations not to "go off half-cocked."

Spectroscope Is Used Successfully In Prospecting for Diamond Beds

Analysis of Rocks With Highly-Sensitive Instrument Utilizing Reflected Light, and Knowledge of Minerals Found With Gems Proves Key to Likely Locations.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., July 15.—(AP)

Use of a spectroscopic eye to prospect for diamonds, a new ultra-scientific tool for mining, was described to the conference on Spectroscopy, which opened at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology today.

The Spectroscope is the most all-seeing eye of the new instruments known to science, a device with which astronomers do most of their analysis of stars.

It translates the light into a rainbow, in which each major color shows as more than a thousand separate wave lengths. Every wave length tells a story—which is the positive identity of the substances from which the light comes and of all the impurities it contains.

In addition to its accuracy, this spectroscopic eye can discern quantities of impurities far too small for any microscope or any chemical analysis to detect.

Its application to diamond mining was described by R. E. Stoiber, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in a report on uses of the spectroscopic eye in mineralogy.

This infallible, rainbow eye, discloses whether ordinary looking rock is, or is not, the kind in which diamonds may be found.

Diamonds may come only from volcanic "pipes." These are the spots where volcanic lava once burst, explosively through the earth's crust. The action geologically is something like a gargantuan gun shooting upward through a rocky armor plate.

The explosions usually occurred where there had once been ocean bottom, whose mud was afterward pressed into hard rock and became dry land.

There were on the average about two miles in diameter but very deep, possibly scores of miles.

Their formation gave them the name of pipes. In this sort of explosion, the diamonds were formed and deposited. Just how is mostly theory.

But the spectroscopic eye shows the explosions occurred through granite rocks, or rocks of a granite nature. It shows also that these granite rocks about the pipes contained a trace of the metals chromium and magnesium.

In Africa, Mr. Stoiber said, far from the Kimberly diamond fields, there are occasional gravels bearing garnets. When the garnets are removed, the spectroscopic eye shows the presence of chromium and magnesium in the same proportions as the Kimberly diamond "pipes."

This proves, he said, the gravel comes from granitic rocks and from volcanic "pipes." It does not show whether the "pipe" contains diamonds but it does point to the right sort of place to prospect and saves much waste hunting.

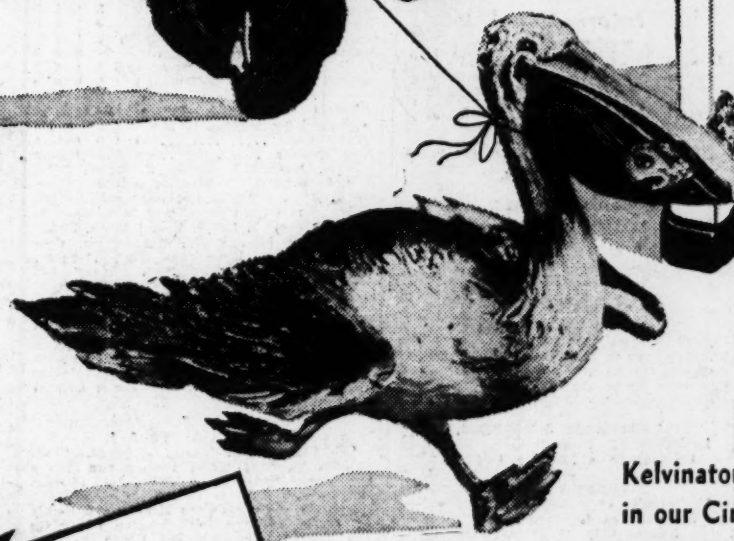

In America, he said, there are many of these volcanic pipes but so far only two or three of them, in Arkansas, are known to yield diamonds.

Three Minute Relief From Periodical Pains

It is so unnecessary to suffer month after month from inorganic pains, because "B. C." will bring soothing relief in three minutes. "B. C." is prepared by a registered pharmacist, compounded on a different principle from most relief-giving agencies in that it contains several ingredients, used by many physicians, so blended and proportioned as to accomplish in a few minutes what we believe no one drug formula can do in so short a time. "B. C." should also be used for the relief of common colds, headaches and neuralgia, muscular aches and pains, reducing fever and for quieting a distressed nervous system without opiates, narcotics or such habit-forming drugs. Get "B. C." in 10c and 25c packages, wherever drugs are sold.—(adv.)

★ FEATURED HEADLINERS ★ IN KELVINATOR'S RING

3 YEARS TO PAY!

Three year terms make the monthly cost of owning a Kelvinator so low that it is much cheaper than any other type of refrigeration. If you have bought an electric range or water heater in the last twelve months, you can buy a Kelvinator and refinance the two appliances over a period of four years.

Kelvinator, with its many exclusive features, leads the parade in our Circus of Values. Its greater convenience and economy cost you no more than would less adequate refrigeration. You pay no premium for its superiorities!

Kelvinator is really "4 refrigerators in 1." There is an emergency fast freezing refrigerator with the Record Freezing Speed. There is a "food-filing" refrigerator for separate storing of dairy products, fresh vegetables and usable left-overs. A third refrigerator insures adequate supply of ice cubes and allows quantity freezing. Finally, the Frost Chest permits the indefinite storage of meats or fish at a constant below-freezing temperature. Why should you be content with less?

PRICES BEGIN AT $99.50

You have your choice of 19 different models at prices that range upward from $99.50 cash. No matter which one you select as best meeting your needs, you may rest assured it will be the finest Kelvinator has built in twenty-one years in the industry. See them at our store. You will be surprised at the low cost and high quality.

'Better Times Roses' Popular With Many Atlanta Hostesses

By Sally Forth.

ROSE growers in Atlanta are enthusiastic over the newest variety of this flower named "the better times rose." Of a brilliant red hue, the rose grows to an unusually large size. When it reaches full bloom the petals turn quite far back, lending a graceful appearance to the bloom, which is enjoying unprecedented popularity.

In addition to its crimson beauty, the rose's chief feature is its lasting quality. Atlanta hostesses have found that the rose holds its beauty and color for days before being cut. Mrs. J. L. Harper, Mrs. Vessey Rainwater and Mrs. T. C. Musgrave are a trio of Atlanta hostesses who have found this newest creation in roses particularly striking for decoration. Especially is it a favorite when patriotic colors are used as the color motif. Sally hears that "better times roses" formed the decoration for many July Fourth parties.

The rose was created by the late E. G. Hill, noted rosarian of Richmond, Ind. This famous rose cultivator began growing this particular bloom at the beginning of President Roosevelt's administration. Thus he named it the "better times rose."

MARY BRYAN, lovely titian-haired daughter of Judge and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, who has returned with her mother and father from England, had quite an interesting experience while being presented at the Court of St. James.

Since Mary was introduced personally by Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, wife of the American ambassador, she was not only granted the privilege of bowing before the queen, but she was allowed to sit with the diplomatic corps and watch her companions from Atlanta being introduced with the general assembly.

Mary was quite impressed by the lovely and colorful appearance of the court, which was emphasized by the traditional picturesque uniforms worn by the court attendants.

During their stay in England, Judge and Mrs. Bryan and Mary were the guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Bingham at the American embassy for a little over a week.

Although King George was ill and unable to attend the ceremony, Mary was enthusiastic in her praise of the queen. "She is everything that you would want a queen to be," she says.

Anne Alston, Betty Timmons and Louise Richardson, who were presented at the same time, have not returned to their homes, but Sally feels that Atlanta has been more than well represented abroad this year.

ARENT the chain letter fad, a romantic angle having appeared in this column yesterday, Sally hears of chain dates, a fad which is fast gaining popularity among the younger set.

If a boy has a date he receives from her five telephone numbers of her girls friends. He in turn calls five of his friends and gives

Miss Blasingame Weds Mr. Moore.

Interest centers in the announcement of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Cecilia Blasingame to John Aldridge Moore, which was quietly solemnized last Friday evening at 8 o'clock at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

Rev. John Moore Walker performed the ceremony in the presence of a small group of relatives. The lovely bride is the attractive daughter of Mrs. C. B. Blasingame, of Atlanta, and is a popular member of the social contingent.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Ralph Reid, of Orlando, Fla., who is the former Miss Mary Aldrich, of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore left after the ceremony for a wedding trip to Florida and upon their return they will reside in Atlanta.

Miss Bell Weds F. S. Stoner.

Mrs. Clifford A. Bell Sr. announces the marriage of her daughter, Mary Lou, to Ford Sibley Stoner, on July 12, at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William H. All Jr., in Charlotte, N. C.

The ceremony was solemnized by Rev. Dr. William Harrison Williams, pastor of Parker Memorial Baptist church, in the presence of a few relatives and close friends of the families.

Miss Virginia Dillon, Mr. Wilson Honored.

Miss Virginia Dillon and her fiancé, Walter Emory Wilson Jr., whose marriage will be an event of Tuesday evening at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, are being honored with a series of parties. Mrs. Charles Bickerstaff and Miss Bright Bickerstaff were hostesses yesterday at a buffet breakfast given at their home on Lullwater road, complimenting the young couple. Garden flowers were used throughout the home and the buffet table was attractively decorated with bowls of pastel-shaded flowers.

On Monday evening Mrs. Richard C. Johnston and Mrs. C. M. Johnston entertained at a buffet supper at their home on Club drive, in honor of Miss Dillon and Mr. Wilson, following their wedding rehearsal.

Mrs. Bona Allen III was hostess Saturday at a luncheon at Brookhaven, the Capital City Country Club, honoring Miss Dillon and Mesdames Devereaux Lippitt and Jack Kalkhurst, recent brides. Covers were placed for Misses Dillon, Marion Yundt, Bright Bickerstaff, Margaret Newberne, Julie McClatchey, Suzanne Memminger, Patsy Thayer, Judy King, Pat Allen, Harriet Grant, Mesdames Lippitt, Kalkhurst, James Sanders, William Wellington, William Bell Roberts, Frederick Fry, of Newark, N. ## Miss Rand's Recital.

Miss Dorothy J. Waldman, concert pianist and teacher, will present an advanced pupil, Miss Mildred Rand, in a pianoforte recital at the Biltmore hotel, Wednesday evening, 8:30 o'clock. Miss Rand is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Leon Rand, of Piedmont road. She has had all her musical instruction under Miss Waldman.

Miss Waldman will present Mildred Rand with her authorized teacher's certificate at the conclusion of her recital. The certificate will be tied with ribbons of gold and maroon, the colors of the Pi Mu, national Greek letter musical society, as Miss Waldman and Miss Rand are active members. Miss Waldman being president, and Miss Rand, secretary, of the Epsilon chapter of Pi Mu of Georgia.

Miss Rand will be assisted by Miss Mary Ann Atkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Atkins, also a pupil of Miss Waldman, who will play two modern selections. Miss Atkins is also a member of Pi Mu.

Story Hour.

Miss Ida Rhodes will entertain the R. A.'s and G. A.'s of the Second Ponce de Leon Baptist church at a "children's story hour," this morning at 10 o'clock at the church. A picnic luncheon will be served. Each child will bring sandwiches. Children between the ages of 6 and 16 are invited to come. Adjournment is at 1:30 o'clock.

Girl Scouts Close Day Camp Friday

Woods Ho, the Girls Scout day camp will close its six weeks' season on Friday. The camp is located on the Z. D. Harrison estate, in Druid Hills, and has afforded supervised play in the country this summer, on Wednesdays and Fridays, and an average of 30 girls have availed themselves of this privilege each day.

The camp staff is exceptional and the camp meets the requirements of National Girl Scouts. A health certificate and the consent of the parents is required, and girls bring their own lunch, which is supplemented by outdoor cooking and for 15 cents they can swim in the Venetian pool.

The program includes handicraft, nature study, folk dancing, games, swimming, singing and outdoor cooking. The girls have constructed some very clever marionettes and on the last day of camp they will present these at Camp Civitania. A breakfast hike, combined with a bird-study program, was one of the highlights of the camp season.

To Mrs. H. D. Craig, the chairman of the camp, goes most of the credit for such a successful season. Mrs. William E. Mitchell, the director of camp, also was in charge of the folk dancing and swimming. The camp personnel included the following: Miss Frances McDonald, Miss Arline Taylor and Polyanna Merideth.

Atlanta U. D. C. Board Meets Today.

The executive board of the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., meets this morning at 10:30 o'clock at the chapter house, 828 Juniper street, N. E. Mrs. W. F. Dykes, chairman of the board, will preside.

This date, marking the birthday anniversary of Miss Mildred Rutherford, a fitting tribute will be paid her by Mrs. Bun Wylie, at 11:30 o'clock, at which time her friends and relatives are invited to be present. Miss Rutherford's birthday is observed annually by the Georgia division, U. D. C.

Final arrangements for "Memory Day," July 22, will be made. Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman, will be present. Those wishing to join the pilgrimage to Crawfordville, on Thursday, will report to the secretary the number of cars going so that all vacancies can be filled. Mrs. Forrest Kibler, president of the chapter, requests all members of the board be present at this important meeting.

Alice McDonald, Miss Rose Sanders, Miss True Swagerty, Mrs. E. W. Newman, Mrs. Homenal Carter, Mrs. J. L. Botters, Mrs. Searcy C. Spears, Mrs. David Gwinn, Mrs. Wright Bryan, Mrs. Preston Upshaw and Mrs. Trenton.

The following girls can tell about the joys of day camping as they did not miss an opportunity: Misses Jean Lemley, Vivian Newberry, Martha Rhodes, Jackie Evans, Morison Taylor, Miss Frances McDonald, Miss Arline Taylor and Polyanna Merideth.

Merrill-Rushin Attendants Honored

Miss Mary Hurt was hostess last evening at a dinner party given at the DuPont Hills Golf Club in honor of Miss Heath Merrill and Emmett Rushin, whose marriage takes place next Saturday. Covers were placed at the attractively appointed table for the hostess, the honor guests and members of the Merrill-Rushin wedding party.

Striking decorations featured the table appointments. In the center of the table was a splendid imitation of the ocean on which sailed a miniature ship with the words "Ship of Matrimony" painted in silver on each side. A shoulder bouquet marked the place of the feminine guests and a gardenia boutonniere designated the places of the masculine guests. The guests enjoyed dancing after dinner.

For Miss Dalton.

Miss Caroline Dalton, of High Point, N. C., who is the attractive guest of Miss Martha Burnett at her home on Peachtree road, was central figure yesterday at the luncheon given by Miss Burnett at the Capital City Country Club.

Covers were laid for Misses Dalton, Beverly Bailey, Ethel Erwin, Ann Atkins, Helen Hill Hopkins, Emily Smith, Martha de Golan and the hostess.

What dates a Coat 1935?

Clearly cut and definitely different is 1935's Fall and Winter Coat Picture! No compromise... no demarcations! The "MUSTS" are briefly told... EVERY COAT "must" have its "BIG TOP LOOK." Achieved either through its ARM Treatment... deep and roomy... but smooth shoulders. SLEEVE Treatment... peasant shaped with narrow cuff effect... or barrel shape... minus a cuff. Often the "BIG TOP LOOK" is evolved by a combination of arm and sleeve detail.

THE FUR Treatment dates a coat 1935... reverses ripple or point, and are much larger... but "must" have a "Forward Pouch Look." Collars are narrow in the back giving full play to the "Big Top Silhouette."

FURS are classic Kolinsky and Persian... Fox... pointed, blue or natural red. BLOND FUR... badger or natural lynx... the biggest news in the fur world!

THE SKIRT SILHOUETTE may be slightly flared or classic straight-lined... but must wrap way over.

FABRICS are Jacquard and Overweave... patterned on unusual weaving... a certain rough look... but soft and supple in feel!... The ultimate in weaving!

INSTALLMENT XIV.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Elinor Stuart, beautiful blonde, and Noel, her younger sister, good swimmer and expert diver, sun-browned and self-reliant, live with their faded aristocratic Aunt Jessica in an old house on half an acre of Stuart Island overlooking the Potomac, all of which their grandfather had owned. The aunt needs what they pay her from the rentals of their old Baltimore home, made over into studios, and she is counting on marrying the plant Elinor to Stephen Gordon, wealthy young member of the island's summer colony. Returning for five summers, years in a northern boarding school, Noel becomes friends with Scott Court and Ned Wilson, young writers, and Linda Farley, artist, tenant in the Baltimore house. In her aunt's absence the three arrive unexpectedly and Stephen greets Scott and Ned as old college chums. Not knowing that Linda is a sister of Noel's, they are invited to "such people" to her house. Linda takes her in. Scott is greatly attracted to Noel and she frankly tells him she loves him. When Stephen returns from New York with his father, Deems Gordon, who is divorced, Aunt Jessica learns that Scott and Ned are Elinor's old friends and sends for Elinor. The day after Scott's first novel is accepted he announces his engagement to Elinor. Noel tells him she understands when he tries to explain that he is dazzled by Elinor's beauty. Aunt Jessica dies, will everything to Elinor. The Gordons offer for the girl a home. They agree, but Elinor determines to get a job. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

She looked darkly at her sister. In the ugly black dress. Oh, Noel would be all right. Noel loved showing people how superior and heroic she was! Noel wouldn't mind going into a stuffy office and pounding a typewriter for hour on hour. She was accustomed to hardship and loneliness. But she wasn't! She could never look her friends in the face again if she had to go to work!

"I know this is very difficult for you," said Deems, "each in a different way, because you are such different people, but it will adjust itself, believe me. Other people have felt their world crumbling about them but they patched it together again."

"Yes," Elinor retorted, "patched?"

"We'll be married in the fall," said Scott. "In the meantime I'll work as I've never worked before."

He wondered why his love gave him no happiness and he tried to comfort himself into believing that once he and Elinor were married, his love would make up to her for the luxuries she wanted. Why was it, in those brief contacts with Noel, coming upon her suddenly in a pensive mood and talking with her only a few minutes, she gave him a brighter outlook on everything? Noel looked ahead unafraid and optimistically. She was not afraid of work or of poverty. It was loneliness only that she feared. And yet Noel, wanting only love, was denied that.

Deems took up the thread of conversation again.

"Come with us for a few weeks. Then Noel can go with Linda and look for a job. While you're with us, Scott can come down often, or for that matter, he can stay, too. He's giving up his job at the school to devote all his time to writing."

"Thank you," said Scott, "but I'll keep the studio in town. I can write better in these surroundings."

"I'll let you have a car then," Stephen said helpfully. "The roadster. I never use it."

"That would be better," said Scott. "I want to be with Elinor as much as my work will permit."

"Work?" queried Elinor. "How can you talk about work at a time like this? Our lives, our existence are at stake."

Noel smiled. "It isn't as bad as that. We might be orphans but we aren't deserted. We have good friends."

"A bride without a trousseau?" lamented Elinor. "And Aunt Jessica wanted me to have such a lovely trousseau."

If she expected a sympathetic response, there was none, and she went to bed. That about Dalton and Carrie? They've been with the Stuarts since they were bride and groom. Aunt Jessica couldn't bear to have them go with strangers.

"I'll take them," Stephen offered. Anything, he thought, to satisfy her, and take that weariness from her voice!

"It's settled then," said Deems. "Yes," said Noel. "We're coming with you and Stephen."

The lawyer came in late from town. Noel recognized him as being the same gruff voiced man who had handled her father's muddled affairs and who had calmly announced that he had left them nothing.

"Your aunt," he said, "talked to me about you often. She was much concerned about your futures since she was the only surviving relative."

"Yes," said Elinor sweetly. "She was always thinking of us. We'll never get over this."

"We are all concerned about these two girls," Deems said. "They have no relatives."

The lawyer took the will out of his brief case, and read it slowly. His heavy voice filled the room.

To Elinor, Aunt Jessica left the house, her bank account of $5,000, her annuity of $1,500, her jewels and personal property. To Dalton and Carrie, she left her $5,000 insurance policy.

Noel sat as always, very still, when she was greatly shaken. Elinor was well taken care of. Elinor would not have to earn her living. Aunt Jessica, loving her selfishly, had provided for her future. Now Elinor would have that trousseau her aunt had wanted her to have.

Noel looked at Scott who was writhing under this strain. How he hated this! How he hated this incessant talk of money. To Scott other things were more important—the joy of living and loving and working because achievement was a wonderful thing.

Elinor's mood of gloom quickly changed to one of brightness. It was not a great deal of money, but it was all hers.

Stephen looked bored.

Deems' critical eyes saw the expressions on their faces.

When Noel heard her name, "To Noel Stuart, my niece," she sat up and in her eyes were anticipation and expectancy. Noel moved her dark eyes of Scott met her, held them.

"To Noel Stuart, my niece," the will read, "I leave the sum one dollar."

In Stephen's palatial home it was the blue and white room that Elinor selected and the green and yellow room into which Noel moved her shabby belongings.

Elinor, living in borrowed luxury and made independent by her aunt, soon recovered from the blow of Aunt Jessica's sudden death and soon accustomed herself to the spacious Spanish villa on the hill. She breakfasted in bed, went on extravagant shopping tours in the city department stores until scarcely another dress could find a place in her clothes closet. In such a burst of lavish spending, the five thousand dollars dwindled. And to add to Scott's further embarrassment she bought an enormous diamond engagement ring and flaunted it before her friends.

People on the island gossiped. Those who did not like Elinor remarked publicly about her Parisian frocks and Noel's habitually shabby appearance. It was apparent, they said, that the younger girl's aunt had left her nothing, and that Elinor had given her none of her share.

Noel cringed under their pity, wanting none of it. When she awoke in the lovely bedroom in the morning, one thought and one only dominated. "I can't stay here much longer. Deems and Stephen don't care, but I can't go on living on them. I can't bear people's eyes pitying me every time I go to the beach. I've got to find a job."

Scott came almost nightly. He appeared worried and harassed. On particularly warm days when she was swimming, she would think of him in the stuffy studio, coat off and sleeves rolled up, pounding away on his old typewriter. All that for Elinor! All that so that he could marry her! To me it wouldn't make any difference, I'd marry only him.

Elinor, basking in luxury, dressing exquisitely in her new clothes, gave no consideration to the long tedious hours he put in at his desk. When she wanted to go to the club and dance and show off a particularly stunning new dress, and Scott complained gently that he was tired, she went a little and sulked.

They were trying days for Noel. She swam with Stephen, talked to Deems a great deal, or, on a borrowed horse, rode alone for hours trying to think of a solution to her problems. Even the thought of Scott and her unwavering love for him was shadowed by the necessity of making a living.

To Noel Stuart, my niece, I leave the sum of one dollar! Had been a cruel blow. She had not expected Aunt Jessica to leave her anything, but her cold disinclination hurt to the quick. "She didn't have to humiliate me like that. I did nothing. Even at the last she hated me."

She came in from riding one morning, walked across the deep soft rug of the hall, and went upstairs. In brown riding breeches and blue silk riding blouse and mud-spattered boots, she looked scarcely more than a child, a sad-faced child with troublesome problems on her mind.

"That you, Noel?" Elinor called out. "Come in."

Elinor was in bed with her breakfast tray on her lap. Deep lines creased her throat.

"How on earth can you get up at 6 o'clock and ride like that? Look at you darling. All over of mud."

"I like it."

"I never saw anyone like you."

"Did you want me for anything?" Noel asked. "I am to meet Stephen at the pavilion for swimming and I've got to change."

"I want to know if you need any money. Of course, I haven't much. My check doesn't come in until the first and I'm about cleaned out but . . ."

"No, I'll make out. But . . . I can't stay here indefinitely. I've got to find a job."

"Job? Work? Don't be silly. Hasn't Stephen said we could stay here? The Stuart house is rented. You know that."

"But, don't you see, I can't stay here living on them. I know they're wealthy and they don't mind, but I . . ."

"You're trying to make a martyr out of yourself," Elinor cried vehemently. "If you go, I'll have to go! You want to get a job and live in a filthy studio. You want to embarrass me! You don't have to work. You can stay here."

"But it's not right!"

"I can't help it, can I, if Aunt Jessica left me everything. If you'd been nicer, she wouldn't have cut you off. You want people to feel sorry for you."

"Pity is loathsome to me," said Noel gently. "That's why I'm going to support myself."

"Everyone is on your side. Everyone thinks I'm wrong! Aunt Jessica was the only person who understood me." The lovely face was distorted and angry. "Stephen and Deems, and even Scott. He thinks you're right, too. Why don't you use your head? I'd marry any man who would work."

"In the first place," said Noel, "there is no one who wants to marry me, and in the second place I've got to love a man as well as let you— you're not marrying for money."

Elinor looked up startled.

"I know it," fumbling for an excuse. "But Stephen's face! He'll be famous. There's something to that—being the wife of a famous man."

THERE IS NO DANGER IN ALLOWING FOOD TO REMAIN IN THE OPENED CAN

There is no danger whatever to health in allowing foods to remain in an opened can, as far as the can itself is concerned. The United States Department of Agriculture made a three-year study of this matter and found no reason for believing that tin cans cause foods to be poisoned or spoiled if allowed to remain in them. There are only the same dangers that attend the spoiling of foods left in all other open vessels, namely, bacterial contamination.

She came in from riding one morning, walked across the deep soft rug of the hall, and went upstairs. In brown riding breeches and blue silk riding blouse and mud-spattered boots, she looked scarcely more than a child, a sad-faced child with troublesome problems on her mind.

"That you, Noel?" Elinor called out. "Come in."

Elinor was in bed with her breakfast tray on her lap. Deep lines creased her throat.

"How on earth can you get up at 6 o'clock and ride like that? Look at you darling. All over of mud."

"I like it."

"I never saw anyone like you."

"Did you want me for anything?" Noel asked. "I am to meet Stephen at the pavilion for swimming and I've got to change."

"I want to know if you need any money. Of course, I haven't much. My check doesn't come in until the first and I'm about cleaned out but . . ."

"No, I'll make out. But . . . I can't stay here indefinitely. I've got to find a job."

"Job? Work? Don't be silly. Hasn't Stephen said we could stay here? The Stuart house is rented. You know that."

"But, don't you see, I can't stay here living on them. I know they're wealthy and they don't mind, but I . . ."

FLYING MACHINE PIONEERS.

VII—A Frenchman's Plane. A Frenchman spent a fortune trying to conquer the air. He began to make secret tests with a man-carrying flying machine 45 years ago, and had at least partial success.

Another man who spent a great sum in air tests was Sir Hiram Maxim. On his estate in the English county of Dorset he directed the building of the largest plane which ever had been attempted. It had a wing spread of 30 feet, and a weight of three and a half tons. There were two giant propellers, each three times as long as a man is tall, and these were turned by a powerful steam engine which used benzine for fuel.

A railroad track half a mile long was used as a runway. Strangely enough, there were guard rails to keep the plane from rising more than six inches from the track. Maxim declared that he did not want to make an actual flight, but wanted to prove that the great weight could be lifted. He did not have power landing gear.

In trials the big machine went forward and back and once it broke free from the guard rails and sailed for a short distance, to the fright of Maxim and his mechanic—who quickly shut off the engine, since the latter did not care to "break their bones." The machine was badly damaged in 1894, and the trials were given up.

Seaborn-Roque-More Wedding Solemnized at Druid Hills Church

The marriage of Miss Louise Seaborn and Allan Roque-More was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Druid Hills Methodist church, Dr. Edward G. Mackay, pastor of the First Methodist church, performed the ceremony amid impressive surroundings. The church was decorated with palms and ferns, these being banked across the front of the church and in the choir loft. Three tall baskets holding graceful arrangements of white gladioli, snapdragons and Easter lilies were placed at intervals among the greenery. Seven-branched candelabra, holding white tapers, flanked the sides of the altar, a large double one forming the central decoration. The altar rail was covered with white and garlanded with fern and smilax.

Arthur T. Neal, organist, rendered a program of music, including "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Estralla," "I Love You Truly," and "My Sweet Mystery of Life." The bride party entered to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," which was changed to the "Bridal Song" from "The Marriage of Figaro." The bride, wearing a white gown, was escorted by her father, Mr. Seaborn, to a white sedan chair. The bridegroom, Mr. Roque-More, was escorted by his father, Mr. Roque-More, to the altar.

The bridesmaids, including Misses Dorothy Gray, Elizabeth Roque-More, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Richard Seaborn, were escorted alike in Nile green point d'esprit posed over taffeta of the same shade. The gowns featured a gathered neckline, a full skirt, and a long train. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of white roses and blue delphinium with a matching green ribbon.

The bride, a lovely blonde, entered with her father, by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown, fashioned in the style of Alencon lace, was posed over white satin. The neckline was a high draped collar, caught at the shoulders with pearl clips. Full sleeves were fitted tight from the elbow to the wrist and extended in a point over the hand. The straight skirt extended in the back to form a long train. A veil of misty white tulle, extending the length of the train, was caught to her hair by a real hair clip, fashioned from a collar worn by the bride's grandmother, the late Mrs. John A. Wilson, of Augusta, Ga. She carried a princess lace handkerchief which had also belonged to her maternal grandmother. She carried a sheaf of bride's roses and lilies of the valley tied with white satin ribbon.

4 SENTENCED TO DEATH IN HAVANA KIDNAPING

HAVANA, July 15.—Four of the 13 defendants in the kidnaping of Antonio San Miguel, 78-year-old multimillionaire, were sentenced to death by the Havana urgency court today.

The other nine defendants were acquitted. It was understood the death sentence would not be carried out until after forthcoming elections, when the constitutional government will decide if the death penalty is to be abolished.

Riots Flare in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 15.—Anti-Semitic riots flared up in the western part of Berlin today, young Nazis hurling water glasses at non-Aryan guests in restaurants and driving them out.

MAN SLIGHTLY HURT IN AUTO-TRAIN CRASH

W. W. White, of 631 West Peachtree street, was injured today at the head and right side of the body last night at the Marietta street and North avenue crossing of the Seaboard Air Line when the car in which he was riding was struck by the Cotton States Special of the Air Line.

White was taken to Grady hospital by P. W. Smith, of 641 Marietta street, treated and dismissed. His car was damaged badly.

Pombo in Venezuela.

MARACAY, Venezuela, July 15.—(UP)—Juan Ignacio Pombo, Spanish trans-Atlantic flyer en route to Mexico to win a prize, arrived here today after a flight from Port of Spain, Trinidad. Pombo, who was delayed in Brazil by the wrecking of his plane after a successful Atlantic hop, is en route to Mexico City to propose to Miss Elena Maria Rivero Corra.

Stewardship Declamation Contest Won by Miss Henrietta Whited

MISS HENRIETTA WHITED.

Miss Henrietta Whited, talented young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Whited, won in a stewardship declamation contest over contestants from the seven other divisions of the Georgia Baptist Missionary Union, at a contest held Monday, July 8, at the annual girls' auxiliary house party at Bessie Tift College, Forsyth, Ga.

This contest was sponsored by the Georgia Baptist Missionary Union, of which Mrs. Ben S. Thompson is president. The contest has been staged for the past several years in every association throughout the state, the winners of the association first competing in their respective division. The elimination contest with the winners of the divisions competing at the house party at Bessie Tift is the culmination of strong competition. All essays must be original. Miss Whited used as her theme "Is the Money Ours or God's?"

Miss Whited is a member of the Intermediate Girls' Auxiliary of the Oakland City Baptist church, of which Mrs. Thaxton Hardy is leader. She is a student at Girls' High school.

Friendly Counsel By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Dear Miss Chatfield: My boy-friend and I have been going together for three years. He is all I could ask for. We have a swell time together, sitting at home, or going to shows and parties. Since his salary is small we try to be economical and save as much as we can. My older sister has no special boy-friend and seldom has a date. She is rather bitter toward me because she doesn't have the good time I have. It is not my fault that she isn't dated up and I don't feel any obligation whatever to take her around everywhere I go

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, July 15.—(AP)—A general advance in railroad obligations followed the corporate bond market with enough strength to work slightly higher today. United States governments were steady.

Gains among the carriers were largest in the junior securities but the better grade rail loans swung upward major fractions to levels within striking distance of the 1935 highs. Industrial loans followed the general course with ease, but utilities became a bit balky just before the close and cancelled some of the day's gains. Latin-American issues occupied the attention in the foreign division.

The Associated Press average of 20 rail bonds advanced 3/4 of a point to 81.4 while other groups remained unchanged to 1/2 of a point higher. Transfers aggregated $8,181,000, par value, the smallest since June 3. Trading in government bonds continued far below normal at approximately $430,000.

Conspicuous in the rail group were several issues of the Baltimore & Ohio which moved forward on an average of a point and loans of the North Western & St. Paul also were higher. Activity continued in the Great Northern group, the general 4-1/2s, 5s and 5-1/2s selling fractions to a full point higher. Nickel Plate 6s moved up 2 points to 81 and Southern Pacific 4-1/2s ended 1-1/8 better at 74-1/8. Southern Railway bonds were steady and only slightly changed.

Other bonds making good progress included obligations of B. F. Goodrich, American Rolling Mill, Postal Telegraph, Chile Copper, Columbia Gas, Duquesne Light and United Drug. Western Union 5s held unchanged at 96-1/2 and Armour 4-1/2s were 1-1/8 lower at 103-7/8.

Government bonds advanced in a range of 2 to 3-3/4 and ended mixed, 1-3/4 lower to 2-3/4 higher. The 2-7/8s treasuries due in 1935, to which was added today another $100,000,000 at an "auction" in Washington, closed 2-3/4 lower at 101-20.

A large part of the investment community was occupied in distributing the $400,000,000 Cleveland Electric Illuminating 3-3/4s, proceeds from which will be used to retire existing obligations bearing a higher interest rate. Early reports indicated an over-subscription to the issue.

Aside from a modest advance in a number of Central and South American bonds, especially Montevideo 5s, there was little doing in the foreign division. Italian 7s were active but showed little net change.

MERCHANDISE SALES

SHOW BIG INCREASE

WASHINGTON, July 15.—(AP)—Increased sales of general merchandise in small towns and chain stores last month were reported today by the Commerce Department.

Based upon figures supplied by mail order houses and chain stores, the report showed that June sales in dollar volume were 38 per cent above those in June, 1934, and 51 per cent above those in June, 1933.

Average daily sales in June were reported 7.5 per cent above those in May, although there ordinarily is little change.

Total sales for the first six months of 1935 were 22.5 per cent greater than for the corresponding period of 1934.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS No. 122

At Masedon's command, the archers of the execution squad laid hold of Jerry, and the grinning Ekhal approached Lady Beth, who had been awarded to him as his bride. The English girl stood staring at him in terror. Once more she faced a frightful, fateful dilemma.

Tarzan, the knew, was up there in the trees, watching; but what aid could he give them against a foe so numerous and strong? Should she call to him that he might once again play the role of the man-god Iskander, as he had done to save them from the Baalites?

Suppose the more enlightened South Canaanites should not accept him as their long awaited leader. Then surely they would set upon him in ruthless fury and tear him to pieces. And the blame would rest upon her. Dare she, for her own advantage, risk Tarzan's life?

The Jungle Lord was unaware of the role he might play. He knew only that the drama before him was approaching a swift and tragic climax. Already the archers were preparing to pierce poor Jerry with their arrows. Now there was no time to plan and think; he must act!

Suppose the more enlightened South Canaanites should not accept him as their long awaited leader. Then surely they would set upon him in ruthless fury and tear him to pieces. And the blame would rest upon her. Dare she, for her own advantage, risk Tarzan's life?
